INTRODUCTION.

The Paternal Ancestors of the Delamaters, were of Norman or Armorican blood. They were Huguenots from France who, like the Puritans of England, found in Holland a temporary home, where the vigorous policy of the States General secured a freedom at that period more robust and generous than could be found elsewhere in Europe.

William 2d of Orange, was prominent in the Dutch Republic.

Under the auspices of States General of the Netherlands, Hudson had discovered in America the great river which took his name ; and in 1621, the West India Company was incorporated by that government.

The Amsterdam Chamber of this powerful Corporation, under its charter, took possession of the country along the banks of the Hudson, including the site of New Amsterdam (New York), Harlem, Flatbush, Esopus (Kingston), Fort Orange (Albany), all which country was called New Netherlands.

Not only natives of Holland, but Walloons from Southern Netherlands, Puritans from England, Waldenses from Piedmont, and Huguenots from France, who had found a temporary home in Holland, were encouraged to seek fortunes and a home in America ; where after encountering the perils of the deep, and the rough experiences of pioneer life among forests and savages they might aid in building new cities, and in founding a new empire.

The magnificent opening at the mouth of the Hudson, and peculiar advantages there for the founding of a city, had many attractions ; while the disturbances in Europe incited continuous emigration to it and other points along the Hudson.

The name Delamater, was originally Le Maitre (the Master or Lord) also De Le Maitre, De Maitre, De Maistre, and finally became quite extensively spelled in the family Delamater, thus anglicising it, by incorporating the phrase "De Le" changed to "De La" into the surname. Some spell the name De La Mater.

Claude Le Maitre at Flatbush and Harlem in 1653, it will be interesting to notice some of the persons who have borne the name in Europe, whose relation to our family, our researches have not enabled us to define.

We have traditions and surmises and probabilities, but not records in these cases. It is believed records will yet be obtained which will be reliable and satisfactory.

There is evidence of the fact that Claude Le Maitre the ancestor of the Delamaters, to whom allusion has been made, descended from an ancient house in Brittany, the Lords of Garlaye. Their estate and house were in the parish of Derval in the diocese of Nantes. It appears to have existed in the 13th century, and that the first records are of Arthur Le Maitre, Lord of Boisvert, in the parish of Aubrey, in the district of Nantes, who was Knight Chamberlain to John 2d, Duke of Brittany, between 1286 and 1312.

Members of the family were eminent in the military service, in the church, and the law, and held commands in various parts of France.

We find some of the name at Paris, some in Languedoc and some in Picardy; while Claude Le Maitre who was of the family of our Claude (and as believed, his grandfather) and allied to the Lords of Caumartin in Picardy, being a Protestant, was prosecuted, fined and imprisoned with others at Amiens in 1588, at the instance of the Catholic League.

In 1593 under the White Plumed Knight of Navarre, Henry IV, John Le Maitre was president of the Parliament of Paris, and was distinguished as enforcing the orders of Parliament against the Policy of the Duke of Mayenne. (See Guizot's 5th Vol., 52-53).

A few years later Antoine Le Maitre was born at or near Paris; who became an advocate in Parliament, and a savant of Port Royal. He was distinguished as an author, and for his learning and eloquence. He was born in 1608, and died in 1658.

Louis Isaac Le Maitre, a brother of Antoine, who is known by his nom de plume De Saaci (a transposition of the syllables of his name Isaac), was born 1613 and died in 1684. He was equally distinguished for learning and controversial powers, against the Jesuits.

He translated the Bible, and was eminent in the Port Royal establishment of which he was a savant. His support of the views of Jansenius against the Jesuits, caused his imprisonment for two years in the Bastile. Upon his release, he resumed his labors, which he continued till his death.

Their mother was the eldest daughter of Antony Arnauld, an advocate at Paris, from 1580 till 1618. It is believed their father was the John Le Maitre above noticed.

The Arnaulds were an old family of Auvergne which belongs to the nobility of the "Robe and the Sword."

By his defence of the cause of Henry IV, and by his powerful and successful defence of the University of Paris against the Jesuits in 1594, he drew on himself the hatred of the Jesuits; but remained till his death in 1618 in possession of his honors, and was esteemed the greatest lawyer of his time. He had twenty children, and these with his many grandchildren, many of whom were distinguished for ability, made a center of influence at Port Royal of much power. While our records are defective as to the relationship of these Le Maitres of Paris to those in Picardy, it will be noticed, they were cotemporary as to time, and that their sentiments were similar. The Jesuits supported by the Papal authority were too strong for the liberal element, though it made its impression on the age.

The celebrated Angelique Arnauld, a younger sister of the mother of Antoine, and Louis Isaac Le Maitre, was a woman of great power at Port Royal.

While Claude and others of his family left France during this period of peculiar controversy, some of them remained; and we have notices in the cyclopaedias of some, whose achievements made them prominent.

From the Languedoc branch, came Francis Xavier Le Maitre who resided at Chambéry in Savoy, and was President in 1788 of the Senate of that country. His son Count Joseph Le Maitre, having completed a course of legal studies at Turin, entered the magistracy Dec. 6, 1774, and on Jan. 29, 1788, became member of the Senate of Savoy, of which his father was president. Upon the invitation of Charles Emmanuel IV, of Sardinia, he repaired with his family to Turin in 1797, and was sent for many years as Minister Plenipotentiary for that kingdom to the court at St. Petersburg, where he won the confidence and esteem of the Emperor Alexander. He became at different times, Minister of State, Regent of the Grand Chancellery of Sardinia and Chevalier of the Grand Cross of St. Maurice and St. Lazare. His writings were extensive and attracted much attention. He died of apoplexy in 1821.

Le Compt Rodolphe Le Maitre, was a son of the Count Joseph, and published an edition of his father's works, at Paris in 1851.

Xavier De Maistre a brother of Count Joseph, entered the military service, and in the revolution of the times he visited St. Petersburg, and held important military positions. He became a writer and attained distinction. His works "Expedition nocturne autour ma Chambre," "Prisoner de Caucase," and others have attracted much attention. He died at St. Petersburg, June 12, 1852.

Frederick Le Maitre born at Havre, July 21, 1800, achieved much success as an actor. His father was an architect, his grandfather a musician. The ninth volume of London Society, illustrated, 1866, devotes several pages to a narrative of his life and peculiarities.

Michael Maittarie (Le Maitre) born in France, of Protestant parents, settled in England at the revocation of the edict of Nantes.

He was educated in England at the Westminster school under Dr. Busby; and at Oxford whither he afterwards went; he obtained a warm friend and patron in Dr. South. He took his degree of M. A. in 1696, and from 1695 till 1699 discharged the duties of second master in Westminster school.

Resigning in 1699, he devoted the remainder of his life to literary pursuits. He died in 1747.

He was a learned and laborious scholar, and furnished useful notes to many classical authors, which he edited and furnished with valuable indexes. He was the author of several works (See 4th Vol. English Cyc. Biography).

It is claimed that Isaac Le Maire, a merchant of Egmont, whose son James born 1590, gave the name Le Maire, to the strait between Staaten Land and Terra del Fuego, belonged to the family Le Maitre; but there are no records at hand to determine this, and allusion is only made to the fact that such has been supposed.

Two vessels were sent out by a joint stock company, of which his father was a member, for the purpose of effecting a passage to the East Indies without doubling the Cape of Good Hope. The Dutch East India Co., had obtained a declaration from the States General, prohibiting vessels not belonging to the Company, from doubling that cape.

James Le Maire had charge of this as commissioner for the owners. Cape Horn was doubled for the first time, and the Strait bearing his name discovered and named.

Having premised so much in reference to these individuals and families, we may further suggest that there were other members of these families, whose relations to society and position in life, were such as to furnish nothing by which we can estimate their number or relationships.

The richest lives are often thus impressed on their own immediate circle. They have appropriate records, though unknown to the curious student of Genealogy. They blessed the circle of society of which they were members, and their works follow them. They are not like flowers "which waste their fragrance."

Whatever position any branch or member of the Delamater family may have attained by special merit, election, appointment, inheritance, family alliances, fortune or professional acquirements; its members doubtless belonged generally to the industrial classes, and cultivated the soil, or engaged in trades and manufacture.

Claude Delamater seems to have been acquainted with agriculture, and was familiar with tools as a carpenter. He was prepared for the exigencies, of the pioneer life in which he engaged. The same is true of his wife Hester Du Bois. His descendants seem to have inherited his industrious habits, and many of them have been eminently successful in business and professional life.

Claude Le Maitre (Delamater), who came to America in 1652, and is the common ancestor of the various families of that name in this country, was born at Richebourg, a small town on a branch of the river Lys about 14 miles west of the city of Lille, within Artois, an ancient Province of France. His parents were from Picardy, and the family though allied to the Lords of Caumartin, of that province, were originally from Brittany.

Claude was a Protestant, and the oppression to which he and others of similar sentiments were subject, induced him, and many others, to emigrate to Canterbury, England, whence he soon went to Amsterdam, Holland, with intent it is believed of ultimately reaching America. He was then a widower, his wife Jean De Lannoy having died; and he married at Amsterdam on April 24, 1652, Hester, a daughter of Pierre Du Bois of that city. Her parents were Huguenots and she was a native of England, having been born at Canterbury.

The trouble between the Catholic and Protestant forces was chronic; and many of the best families had determined to be relieved from it by emigration.

It will be remembered that Protestants were forbidden to print books, without the authority of magistrates of the Romish Communion.

Protestant teachers were interdicted from teaching children more than reading, writing, and arithmetic. Pastors holding meetings amid the ruins of churches that had been pulled down, were condemned to do penance with a rope around their necks, after which they were banished; Protestants were only allowed to bury their dead at day-break or at night-fall. They were prohibited from singing psalms on land or water, in work-shops or dwellings. If a priestly procession passed one of their churches while the psalms were being sung, they must stop instantly on pain of fine or imprisonment of the officiating clergyman. (See "The Huguenots" by Smiles, page 142.)

At the period of which we write, many of the Huguenots found a refuge in England; at Canterbury and other places, and here Hester Du Bois was born. But England though receiving these refugees kindly, was a scene of contest between various factions in Theology, and ecclesiastical polity; which made their residence there uncomfortable.

There was at times a pressure to make the French Calvinist or Huguenot conform to the Church Liturgy. It was finally held that those who were born aliens might still enjoy the use of their own church service, but that all the children born in England should regularly attend the parish churches.

In the time of Charles First, this small concession was limited to only the churches of Canterbury, and measures were taken to enforce conformity in the other dioceses.

In these cases the refugees found themselves exposed to the same kind of persecution from which they had sought refuge, and rather than endure it, several thousands of them left the country, abandoning their new homes, and took the risk of losing all, rather than give up their religious freedom. The revolutionary time of Cromwell came in to modify these measures; but the course of events had been fixed, and a large emigration to Holland was the result. The Dutch received the emigrants hospitably and gave them house accommodation free, with exemption from taxes for several years. But the greater number emigrated with their families to North America.

Claude Le Maitre having lived awhile in Loyerdwars-stræet in Amsterdam, and married Hester Du Bois, also a French refugee, crossed the Atlantic in 1652, and settled at Flatbush in the New Netherlands, where four of his six children were born, and then at Harlem where he resided till his death about 1683. He bought land and served four terms as a Justice of the Peace, between 1666 and 1673. He was also chosen a deacon by a Dutch church, though his sympathies were ever with the French church.

Claude Le Maitre married Hester Du Bois, at Amsterdam, April 24th, 1652. Their children were six, viz :

Jan, born at Flatbush, 1653.

Abraham, born at Flatbush, 1656.

Isaac, born at Flatbush, 1658.

Susanna, born at Flatbush, about 1660.

Hester, born at Harlem, about 1662.

Jacobus, the youngest born at Harlem, about 1665.

It seems that Abraham removed in early manhood with his brother Jacobus to Kingston, Ulster Co., (Esopus), and that their sister Hester, who was married to Moses Le Compt (De Graf) resided there. It seems further that Jan and Isaac and Susanna remained at Harlem; and Jan and Isaac, with Claude appear by the records, in doing military duty, and in list of charges and contributions for public purposes for many years. After the death of Claude in 1683, his widow Hester Le Maitre's name appears in such records.

Among the grantees in the Dongan Patent to certain citizens of Harlem in 1686, appear the names of John (Jan) Isaac and Hester Le Maitre (Du Bois). In 1687, she was married to John (Jan) Tibout, who was Parish clerk, and otherwise active in church and educational matters. The purpose of Claude Le Maitre in leaving France, had been accomplished. His adventure across the sea, had been successful. He was over three score and ten years of age, when he left the stage of action.

Le Maitre disappears; De La Maitres were left established at various places, aiding in developing the country, and forming its institutions.

Did not the scope of this volume limit it to the origin and actual genealogy of the Delamaters, there might be furnished many facts of their early customs, manner of living, etc., of much interest.

The early inhabitants, in their ways and mode of living, preserved all the characteristics of Fatherland. Wedded to their plain and primitive habits, the portrait of our early Dutch yeomanry, as others have drawn it, is here true to the life, with but slight retouching.

The village seats or scattered farm-houses : let us enter one, bidden welcome by mine host, smoking his evening pipe, in his wonted seat on the porch. An air of hospitality has the premises, even to the old well, with watering-trough beside it, which placed conveniently before the house, with mossy bucket hung from the primitive well-pole, invites the gentle kine to come freely to water, or the wayfarer to stop and slake his thirst. These houses have begun to be constructed with greater regard to permanence, and even to style, being solidly built of stone, and of more ample dimensions than formerly, though only of one full story. The low ceilings, still void of lath and plaster, expose the heavy oak beams as roughly hewn, or, if taste has dictated, planed and beaded. Similar taste sometimes demands wainscoting, either plain or in panels, around the rooms and hall, and up the broad stairway, with its oaken balustrade, leading to sleeping-chambers in the loft. Outer doors, swung upon heavy strap hinges, are invariably divided in halves horizontally, the upper one usually open by day in the warm season, for the admission of air and light. Above it perhaps is a sash with three or four small panes of thick green glass, blown with a curious knob or swell in the centre. The panes in the windows measure not over seven by nine inches, and are sometimes set in leaden cross-bars, being protected by strong, close shutters, instead of the less secure modern blinds. The fireplace, with usually no jambs (but having supports built into the wall), gives ample room for all around the fire. Thus suspended, as it were, overhead, the chimney mouth opens wide and flaring to catch the fugitive sparks and smoke, and forms a convenient place in which, at the proper season, to hang up hams, sausage and beef to cure.

Plain and substantial were their dwellings, and in perfect accord with the manners and tastes of the occupants, which were simple, unaffected and economical. Slow and deliberate in what they did, it was made up by patience and application. And no people could have been more independent of the outside world. The farmer burnt his own lime, tanned his own leather, often made all the boots and shoes worn by himself and family, and did much of his own carpenter and wheelwright work. Their help in the heavy farm work was mainly African slaves, who at this time, numbered as one to four whites.

Primitive were their methods of farming ; it was not the era of iron ploughs, horse-rakes and reapers. The scythe was used in mowing grass. The cradle was then unknown, and instead of which all grain was cut with sickle, or with the sith and hook. The sith had a blade similar to that of the scythe, but only half as long, to which was attached a snath of about the same length, having at the other end a loop like that of a shovel-handle. The hook was made of a slender wooden stock, three feet long, from the end of which ran out at a right angle a small iron prong about eight inches long. When used the hook was held in the left hand near the middle, where, to prevent its turning, was a socket for the thumb to rest in, the prong being turned from the person. The hook, pressed against the standing grain, served to hold it in place, while it was cut by a swing of the sith, which was held in the other hand. The cut grain was thus left leaning, against that still uncut, till the reaper, or his attendant following after him, gathered and bound it into sheaves. Nothing was deemed more important than to cut and lay in a good supply of salt hay, which was then thought indispensable for the healthy subsistence of cattle through the winter. It was for this reason that a piece of salt meadow was regarded as a necessary appendage to every farm, and was not less valuable in the view of the early settlers than so much upland.

The children were brought up to those habits of industry which the parents themselves found so profitable. The sons were invariably given a useful trade, and the daughters well taught in all household duties. While the men were engaged in the out-door work of the farm, the women, in short gown and slippers, the common indoor dress, were as busy at their special avocations. The spinning-wheel was brought out and set in motion as soon as wool and flax could be prepared in the fall, and so each family made its own "homespun," as it was termed, both white and colored, to supply its members with clothing; while she was considered but a poor candidate for matrimony who could not show her stores of domestic linens, and other products of her maiden industry. The dames, so saving were they of their time, usually took their spinning-wheels, on going to spend a social afternoon with a neighbor. Nor were the females unwilling to help in the field during the busy season of harvest or corn-gathering. Side by side with their fathers, brothers and husbands, they vied with them in raking hay or carrying sheaves; and their presence gave a charm to the merry time of husking.

Broom and scrubbing-brush, with a periodical whitewashing, frequently tinted yellow or green, kept their apartments cleanly and neat. The carpet, when first introduced called in derision a dirt-corer, was in those days unknown. The bare floors, as scrupulously clean as the bare table on which they ate their meals, were regularly scrubbed, then sprinkled with the fine beach sand. On cleaning day it was spread moistened in little heaps over the floor, the family being taught to tread carefully between them. To disturb these would sadly mar the economy of the good housewife, and maybe provoke some good honest scolding in Dutch! The next day the sand, now dry, was swept in waves, or other figures, by drawing the broom lightly over it. It was in truth but a sample of the general tidiness which ruled the premises.

They were true and brave men and women ; and met successfully the exigencies of the times as pioneers. Many of their names may be found on the pages of this volume. Let their descendants honor their memory.

PREFACE.

The Author and Compiler of this volume, on the origin of the Delamater Family in this country, and the genealogy of some of its branches, is himself a Delamater.

He submits for the consideration of such persons as from their relationship by blood, alliance by marriage or otherwise, may be interested in the subject ; a few facts as to the objects proposed, and the reasons which induced him to engage in this work.

The sentiment which inclines mankind to value the records and to cherish the memories of their ancestors, is founded in nature. To honor ones parents in every well constituted mind, is no more a duty, than a necessity. This principle is substantially the same in its application to ancestors in more remote degrees, perhaps the veneration increases, as one traces back his lineage, and identifies his ancestor, or ancestors in peculiar circumstances in the olden times.

It is the author's aim to furnish from wasting records and occasional monuments yet preserved, some glimpses of the ancestors of the Delamaters for a dozen generations.

He would do this, because while many desire to have a compilation and preservation of family traditions, narratives and records all seem to neglect it, or fail to make suitable provision therefor. Not only the present, but coming generations have a right to something of this kind from our hands.

The many motives for tracing, and maintaining the proximity of relationship, and the ties of kinship, in a considerate, and intelligent manner need not be recounted.

If ones ancestors or kindred could be considered as not entitled to consideration, grateful remembrance, or fraternal regard, still the element curiosity, would seem to excite an interest in a narrative of many things in regard to them.

Their nationality, their condition in life, their intermarriages, their occupation, or profession, the number of their children, their misfortunes or good fortune; these and other subjects, often become the theme of inquiry and thought.

Having gathered from various publications many facts relating to our Delamater ancestry, and having come in possession of many records of the genealogy of some of its branches from the late Dr. John Delamater of Cleveland, Ohio, who furnished much of the material from which the Hon. Reuben H. Walworth prepared the communication on the genealogy of the Delamater family, which appeared in the January No. of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for 1860 ; it seemed to the writer important that they should be preserved in some permanent form.

But other considerations have stimulated and aided in the accumulation of genealogical facts.

Among the early residents at New Amsterdam (N. Y.), was Annetje (Anna) Webber, whose first husband was Jan (John) Roleoff, and whose second, was the Rev. Everardus Bogardus, pastor of the Dutch Church in that city.

Her children were four to Jan Roleoff ; and also four to E. Bogardus ; all born between 1626 and 1656. Her name has been given in newspaper articles as " Anneke Jans," or " Anneke Jans " Bogardus : This Annetje Webber, Roleoff, or Bogardus ; is said to have been a granddaughter of William of Orange, for whom the fort at Albany was named ; and she became in various ways entitled to much valuable real estate at various points.

It is said that Trinty Church, hold or control 192 acres of land in the heart of the city of New York, in which some of her heirs have a title by descent. At all events about 1860, some of these heirs commenced making preparation for asserting their claims at law. A reference is made to this claim of a flaw in the title of that church, in the 2nd vol. of Bryant's History, p. 121, note.

Sarah Roleoff, the eldest daughter of Jan Roleoff and Annetje his wife, was married to Dr. Hans Kierstede, a physician from Amsterdam, in the fort at New Amsterdam, on June 29th, 1642.

One of their daughters, Catharine, was married to Johannes Kip, about 1680 ; and among their children was a son Jacobus, born Oct. 22, 1682 ; who on Dec. 14th, 1704, married Catherine De Hart of New York. They had children, one of whom Johannes, born in 1705, married Margaret Van Ettan, in 1723.

They had several children, among whom were :

Eva, who was married to Isaac Delamater, Feb. 20th, 1752.

Maria, who was married to John Delamater, Feb. 20th, 1752.

Catharine, born Oct. 13th, 1644 ; and was married to Hendrick Delamater, about 1765.

It will be noticed that three Delamaters, brothers, Isaac, John and Hendrick, married three Kips, sisters, Eva, Maria and Catharine, and that these sisters were lineal descendants of Annetje (Anna) Roleoff (Bogardus).

In claiming by descent it became necessary to carefully prepare and verify genealogical tables ; and as the writer was a lineal descendant of John Delamater, and interested in the examination of the claim, and was conveniently near to the property involved, he became the depositary of many papers, and had communication with parties interested, who reside in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and other western states, as well as in New Jersey and various parts of New York. The Hon. Anson H. Delamater of Jackson Co., Michigan, has given much assistance in this work. His grandfather, Isaac Delamater, left numerous descendants, mostly residing in the western states, and he has furnished their genealogy quite completely.

Having visited some of the descendants of Benjamin Delamater, in Pennsylvania, reliable and full records were obtained of that branch of the family, and many particulars as to individual members of it. While most families in the branches whose genealogy this volume was intended to publish, have promptly furnished their records, and other information ; it is regretted that some have appeared to take no interest in it ; and not furnishing any information as to their lines, they were necessarily left out. Should another edition ever be issued, these few missing families may be willing to supply this regretted deficiency.

But, in addition to the manuscript and records of the late Dr. John Delamater, of Cleveland, and the article from Chancellor Walworth, in the Register, referred to, and the various records placed in the hands of the writer, in connection with the contemplated litigation with Trinity Church, various individuals have, in written correspondence, furnished many valuable items of information, traditions and narratives, some of which will be found in the pages of this volume. The writer has also been much aided by an examination of Riker's recent History of Harlem, etc., in establishing facts in relation to Claude Le Maitre, and his wife Hester Du Bois, the common ancestors of the Delamaters in the United States.

In some branches of this genealogy, we have adopted a spelling quite prevalent; and written the name De La Mater; but finding among the descendants of Claude Le Maitre in New York city, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and very extensively in the west; that the name is commonly spelled Delamater, we have generally, in this work, conformed to that usage.

However imperfect this volume may, in some respects, be, as a partial genealogy of the Delamaters, it is submitted to them as the result of much research and labor, and their generous consideration is invoked. It may furnish material for a more extensive and perfect compilation in the future. There are many reasons why the Delamaters should revere and cherish the memory of their ancestors.

CHAPTER I.

CLAUDE LE MAITRE (Delamater)¹, the ancestor of all who inherit the name in the United States, was a native of Richebourg, in Artois, France, and had sprung from an old family in Picardy, originally from Brittany. In relation to these ancestors, and a narrative of the motives which induced him to leave his native land, and other particulars, the reader is referred to the introduction to this volume, which will be found quite full and specific on many points. On the 24th of April, 1652, Claude married at Amsterdam, Holland, Hester, a daughter of Pierre Du Bois, of that city; though late of Canterbury, England, where Hester was born. Du Bois, like Le Maitre and others, had been prompted by the religious intolerance of France in those times to seek that freedom abroad, which was not then secure at home. The spirit of adventure invited them across the sea.

Claude and Hester Le Maitre came to America and made their home at Flatbush (Midwout), from 1652 till 1662; where four of their children, Jan, Abraham, Isaac and Susanna were born. They then removed to Harlem, where two others, Hester and Jacobus, were born.

This became their home the remainder of their days.

He secured lands there, by allotment, purchase, or otherwise; aided in the defence against hostile Indians; held various civil and church trusts, and was an efficient and successful Pioneer in the early days of New York. His death occurred about 1683. Hester, his widow survived him many years. Their children were:

- 1 i Jan (John)², b. at Flatbush, 1653; m. Ruth, a daughter of Resolved Waldron, and operated extensively in real estate. He d. 1702, leaving an interesting family, a widow, and six sons and daughters.

- 2 ii Abraham², b. at Flatbush, 1656 ; he removed in early manhood with his brother Jacobus to Kingston (Esopus), Ulster Co., N. Y., and in 1682, married Celeste, daughter of Cornelius Vernoye ; he afterward m. a second wife, Elsie Tappan ; he became an elder in the church and prominent in public affairs (See Appendix).
- 3 iii Isaac Le Maitre², b. 1658 ; m., about 1681, Cornelia Evarts, of Albany ; he served the town in various offices ; his home was in Harlem, where he raised an interesting family ; their children were: i. Hester, baptised Apr. 7, 1683, at Albany, who m. Simon Van Ness of that place, but in 1716, a farmer at Newark, N. J. ; ii. Evertie, b. Jan. 14, 1685, m., 1717, Bernardus Verveleen of Rockland Co., N. J. ; iii. Johannes, b. Jan'y 16, 1687, m., 1714, Annetje, dau. of John Waldron ; iv. Abraham, b. March 29, 1690, m., in 1718, Catherine Benson ; v. Isaac, b. Apr. 2, 1693 ; did this Isaac m. Annetta Myers? accounts differ ; Abram and Isaac have been said to have been twins ; (?) vi. Rebecca, b. Nov. 25, 1696, m. Capt. Isaac De Le Maitre, of Marbletown, and Amenia, Oct. 20, 1717 ; vii. Jacob, b. Apr. 9, 1699 ; viii. Susanna, who m., Johannes B. Waldron ; ix. Cornelia, who m., Cornelius Quackenbos, of Harlem.
- 4 iv Susanna², b. about 1660, at Flatbush, who was m. to Albert Hermans Bussing, by whom she had two children.
- 5 v Hester², born at Harlem, 1662 ; who was married to Moses Le Count (De Graf) and resided at Kingston.
- 6 vi Jacobus², (James) Le Maitre b. at Harlem about 1665 ; settled at Kingston, in 1680 ; married at that place in 1688.

The record we furnish of four of the sons and daughters of Claude and Hester Le Maitre, is general ; that of two of them, Jacobus and Isaac, is or will be more special and furnishes the names of their children.

A son of Jacobus, Isaac, and a daughter of Isaac, Rebecca in intermarrying, in 1717, became the parents of a large family, of which some branches have furnished pretty full records for this volume. It will be remembered that their descendants sustain the same relation to both Jacobus and Isaac, sons of Claude Le Maitre and their descendants.

This intermarriage of three of the sons of Isaac Le Maitre with three daughters of Johannes Kip, in 1752, and 1765; eventually occasioned the consideration of interests which have led to the accumulation of many records, which are to be preserved in this volume.

CHAPTER II.

2 JACOBUS (JAMES) LE MAITRE², b. at Harlem about 1665, settled at Kingston in 1680; married at that place in 1688, Gertrude, daughter of Martin Cornelisz Ysselsteyn, of Claverack. He was a trustee of Kingston and a firm supporter of the Dutch Reformed Church. He resided in Marbletown, upon land (296 acres) bought in 1715, where he died in 1741, leaving this property to his sons Isaac and Martin, and a farm in Claverack to his eldest son Claude. CHAPTER III.

3 Capt. ISAAC LE MAITRE (DELAMATER)³, second son of Jacobus Le Maitre (Delamater), born in Kingston, Ulster Co., N. Y.; June 3, 1694, married Rebecca, daughter of Isaac Le Maitre (Delamater), of Harlem. She was born Nov. 25, 1696. We find recorded in the Dutch Reformed Church at Kingston, the marriage of Isaac Le Maitre and Rebecca Le Maitre, married Oct. 20, 1717, by Dominic Petres. They settled on their own farm at Marbletown. They had a family of seven children; when about 1745, they removed with their family to the Oblong (now Amenia), Dutchess Co., N. Y. He was a freeholder and became wealthy; he was a captain of militia and went with his company to Canada during the French war; he was also a justice of the peace and when a man complained of his poor neighbor for killing deer out of season, in order to get half the penalty which the law gave to the complainant; the worthy justice enforced the law to the very letter, for the poor man being unable to pay the fine, the alternative penalty of twenty lashes had to be substituted in place of the fine. The justice awarded to the complainant his half of the penalty, by ordering the constable to give him ten out of the twenty lashes upon his naked back, to the perfect satisfaction of the whole neighborhood. The family tradition is that the worthy magistrate was never afterwards troubled with vexatious complaints of that kind against any of his neighbors. He died in Amenia in 1775, and was buried in the family cemetery on his own farm. His children all born at Marbletown (Kingston), were :

- 14 i Johannes (John)^t, b. April 9, 1720; m. Maria Kip, Feb. 1, 1752.

CHAPTER V.

21 ISAAC DE LA MATER⁵, son of John De La Mater and Maria Kipp, was born at Oblong (Amenia), Dutchess Co., N. Y., Dec. 13, 1762 ; he remained with his parents until he was about 18 years of age, when he entered a store and learned the mercantile trade. After some years he became a merchant at Amenia. Feb. 8, 1775, married Hannah Barlow, daughter of Nathan Barlow, of Amenia. In 1776 he enlisted in the American Army, serving as commissary during the Revolutionary War. After peace was declared he returned to Amenia ; in 1791 removed and settled in Duanesburgh, Schenectady Co., N. Y., where he purchased a farm. In 1801 he sold his farm and removed to Pompey, Onondaga Co., N. Y., where he purchased a large farm. In 1803 he entered into a co-partnership with his eldest son in mercantile business and farming. They dealt largely in cattle, which they drove to Philadelphia market and the New England States. He was a man of extraordinary energy and perseverance, strictly honest in all his dealings, and highly respected by all who knew him. He died at his residence at Oran in the town of Pompey, Mar. 12, 1830. His widow survived him and in 1853 removed with her son to Columbia, Jackson Co., Mich., where she died Apr. 17, 1845. Their children were :

151 MARY J. GRANGER^s, daughter of Bradley F. Granger and Susan A. H. De La Mater, b. January 31, 1854; her father removed to Ann Arbor when she was three years old, at which place she resided until she married, March 3, 1875, by the Rev. B. F. Cocker to Ramson J. Thacker, of Oxford, Miss., who was born July 17, 1850, in Yallahura Co., now Grenada Co., Miss., on a cotton plantation; removed thence while small to Lafayette Co., Miss. His grandfather, Ramson Thacker, b. in 1746, who served as a soldier under Washington and Marion, was of English origin, while his grandmother was of French origin. Ramson Thacker settled at an early period in S. Carolina and after taking an active part in the war of Independence emigrated to the Territory of Virginia, now Kentucky, thence to the then French province of Louisiana, thence to Mississippi; was a soldier under Andrew Jackson, at the battle of New Orleans; in 1861 was a Union man and opposed secession; d. in 1875. His mother descended in a direct line from Alexander Hamilton, who was born in the Isle of Nevis, one of the West Indies, and traces his genealogy back to Sir David de Hamilton, almost five hundred years ago. At the age of fourteen, he, Ramson J. Thacker, entered the army of the Confederate States, in 1863, in the 18th Cavalry Regiment, Miss., under Gen. Forest; early in 1864 was transferred to the army of Virginia; rejoined his regiment at Atlanta, Ga. Served in General J. B. Hood's advance and retreat, in which campaign his horse was killed; he served in the infantry at battle of Franklin and Nashville. A horse having been sent to him from Miss., he rejoined his regiment; was promoted to brevet 2nd lieutenant, in the 18th Miss. Cavalry, as regimental color bearer. In regard to the remainder of his service in the army, he said, "I fought in the last battle of the 'Lost Cause' at Lima, Ala. After the surrender of Gens. Lee and Johnston, was one of the 2,000 who volunteered to meet President Davis and guard him to the trans. Miss. Dept. and renew the war for independence. We, after a forced march, were eight hours late, and our beloved president and chief was surprised and captured. Our enemy was too strong, and our horses too weak to recapture the president. We rejoined Gen. Frost at Gainesville, where he surrendered his army to Gen. Canby, U. S. A., May 5, 1865, as prisoners of war. Parole returned our side arms, horses, etc.; returned home to find the old plantations devastated. fences gone and houses burned, horses, mules and cattle stolen and driven away; farming utensils, barns and negro quarters all gone save a few black spots to mark the place they occupied; negroes stolen and driven away by the Federal army, save a few faithful and worthless old ones. Such was the condition in which I found my once happy and wealthy home. Spent two years in helping to rebuild part of the old plantation." He then went through the University of Miss., at Oxford, Miss., after which he entered the University of Mich., at Ann Arbor and graduated in the law department of that institution, Mar. 25, 1874; he is now a successful law practitioner at Houston, Texas. Their child:

155 i Richard Bradley Thacker⁹, b. November 24, 1877.

He will trace his genealogy back through his grandmother, Susan A. H. De La Mater, to the famous Lamaitre family of France, to the middle of the 12th century, over six hundred years ago.

- 405 ii Grace Maria De La Mater, b. Mar. 30, 1862;
 d. Oct. 27, 1864.

In 1861, at the outbreak of the war between the north and the south he enlisted joining the 91st regiment of volunteers; he went as hospital steward under Dr. Morris, of Oswego. They were ordered to Key West, Fla., and sailed from New York in December, remaining there some time until they were sent to Pensacola; from thence to New Orleans; thence to Baton Rouge, where they remained some time, but were finally transferred to Brasier City where stores were kept, it being the terminus of a railroad from New Orleans. He remained in charge of the invalids at Brasier City, the regiment joining the grand army at Baton Rouge. This regiment led in the attack on Port Hudson, and was almost entirely destroyed. Brasier City was captured, all the stores burned; the invalid soldiers getting on board of gun-boats, cut them loose and floated down the stream. While at Baton Rouge, Lieut. De La Mater became discontented with his position as hospital steward and obtained a commission as 1st. lieutenant, which he had in his pocket when the city was captured, and being considered a commissioned officer was made a prisoner together with a few officers and men. They were taken up a bayou about 90 miles to Sheveport, La., and from there marched about 150 miles to a place called Tyler, Texas; many indignities being perpetrated on the prisoners during the march and in the prison camp, where they were held for 13 months. But Lieut. De La Mater, being possessed of an excellent physique was able to endure until an exchange was made, when he returned to Albany and again joined his regiment, which had been recruited and sent to Baltimore, from which place they joined the grand army at Petersburg, Va. Here he was brought into active service in the action against Lee's army, which gave way and took up their march south. The 91st was on the flank at the final surrender of Lee's army at Appomattox C. H., Va. At the close of the war he was breveted captain, returned to Albany and followed his trade for a short time, when he removed to Washington, D. C., where he worked in the Government Printing Office until his health failed and he removed to Albany in 1876. He died there in 1877, leaving his wife and one son. So closes the life of one of whom it can be truly said, "He served his country from pure unsullied principles of patriotism."

The following is copied from a letter received from John Milton De La Materⁱ, eldest son of Dr. Ira M. De La Mater. "I enlisted as private in J. Co., 13th N.

Y. S. Vol., heavy artillery, Sept. 13, 1863. In November, part of four companies of recruits for the 13th Reg. were consolidated to form Co. J, and put on board the gun-boat Foster, sailed from New York to Norfolk, Va., Feb. 1, 1864, went to Plymouth, N. C., by way of Dismal Swamp Canal and Albemarle Sound, making that head-quarters and raiding from there up the rivers flowing into the sound. Returned to Norfolk, Va., March 1, 1864; when in Dismal Swamp Canal the last day of March, our engine gave out and we were towed back to Norfolk, and a few days after went into camp on the point of land extending into the bay between Norfolk and Portsmouth, the vessel being sent to Baltimore for repairs. May 4, 1864, about sixty members of Co. J, including J. M. De La Mater, were detailed with Co. H, 1st N. Y. S. Eng. Corps, in charge of a flotilla of pontoons and advanced up the James river to Bermuda. Hundreds assisted to land troops with pontoons; afterwards built docks and unloaded quarter-masters' stores and laid a pontoon bridge across the James river at Deep Bottom. In July returned to the gun-boat Foster, at that time lying just below pontoon bridge at point of rocks in the Apomattox river. In December, 1864, six launch crews of seventeen men each went with General Butler to Fort Fisher, at the mouth of Cape Fear river, N. C., to assist in landing troops, and at sundown began to re-embark the troops. The sea became rough at sundown; we worked in the boats until midnight. During the night all our boats were lost having been moved astern the transports. On the 26th of Dec., sailed for Fortress Monroe and returned to the Foster blockade at the mouth of Nansemond river ; remained in this station till May, when the gun-boat went out of commission. We then went into camp at Fort Ringold near Portsmouth on the Elizabeth river, at which place we were mustered out of the United States service on the 28th day of June, 1865 ; a few days later sailed for New York, arrived July 3; encamped on Harts Island until July 11, when we were paid off and discharged.

73 BETSEY DELAMATER⁶, dau. of John Delamater and Mary Eaton, his wife, b. July 7, 1801; m. Rufus Lamreaux, in 1817, Betsey Delamater died Sept. 15, 1845.

Rufus Lamreaux was born July 4, 1799, at Rensselaerville, Albany Co., N. Y. At an early period his parents removed to Albany. He did not like city life, and returned to Rensselaerville to live with his grandfather. When about 19 years of age he experienced religion, and joining the Methodist Episcopal church, began to exhort. Among his papers we find one which recognizes him as an exhorter, it bears date, Feb. 21, 1824, Knox, Albany Co., N. Y. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Elijah Hedding, at Manlius, N. Y., on the 20th of July, 1832. He started for Illinois, May 6, 1835, and settled at, or near Princeton; he was ordained elder at Jackson, Ill., Oct. 1, 1837. Soon after the anti-slavery agitation, he immediately began to plead for the slave, and was arraigned before the conference at Chicago, and requested to stop agitating the subject; he however refused compliance, telling the conference "that no man or set of men should ever put a padlock on his lips." He then withdrew from the M. E. church, and joined the Wesleyans, attending the first conference held as far west as Cincinnati, O. An incident on the way showed his indomitable spirit, he was preaching on a boat on the Ohio river, and as he never failed, meekly but fearlessly to apply the truth of Scripture to all kinds of sinners, he faithfully gave slaveholders their portion. They raised a mob and assured him that he had but half an hour to live, as they intended to put him into the river. He calmly, after rebuking his timid friends, assured them that he was ready and did not even ask for the half hour granted by them. He was many times mobbed and threatened, but was possessed of a calm, unshaken faith that God could and would protect him as long as he had any use for him in the world. He gave all for the truth, and cheerfully travelled year in and year out preaching the gospel, and for whole years together not receiving pay enough to keep his horse shod. Meantime, his family dug out of the ground, assisted by him when at home, the scanty means necessary to a frugal existence. He went with his eldest son, Andrew, to Colorado, and after remaining some months he went with a company, in the fall, to carry provisions to a company of miners in the mountains, whom it was supposed would perish if not reached by supplies before winter set in. Before they got there the miners had left, going some other way. Winter came upon them early, and they experienced great suffering; in the spring starvation stared them in the face. Mr. Lamreaux, with a man from Iowa, started to return to his son at Colorado, but when near the mining settlement of Cash Creek he attempted to cross a mountain torrent on the drift-wood which gave way, so entangling him in the logs that his companion was not able to extricate him. He became chilled with the cold snow water from the adjacent mountains, in the month of June, and soon died. Thus a meek and faithful, unselfish man, and, when his master's cause demanded, a fearless and mighty defender of unpopular truth, passed from earth, that had been to him a field of constant and tireless labor for others, leaving a memory yet fragrant and green in the hearts of thousands. That last Jordan was crossed in the month of June, 1862. His opportunities for education were very meagre, being confined to a very few months in the winter school, but his appreciation of the benefits of mental culture is seen in the fact that he assisted in founding two colleges, one of them being Wheaton College, and the other is located at College Springs, Iowa.

321 GEORGE B. DELAMATER⁷, son of Thomas Delamater and Martha Day, his wife, b. at Whitehall, N. Y., January 14, 1821.

He removed with his parents in 1822, to Crawford Co., Pa. He received in private and public schools, and in academies and college classes at Waterford, Oberlin and Meadville, a good practical education, and having studied law, was, in 1847, admitted to the bar of Crawford Co., and soon after to the bars of Erie and Warren counties. March 24, 1847, he m. Susan Cowle, daughter of Noah Town, and his residence, which had been mainly in Meadville, from 1840, was continued till 1850, when in pursuance of business plans, he removed to Youngsville, Pa.; thence in 1852 to Townville, Crawford Co., Pa., where he resided, engaged in various business enterprises until the spring of 1864, when he returned to Meadville, which has since been his home. While he never devoted himself exclusively to the law as a profession, he accumulated good law and miscellaneous libraries, and acquired experience in many departments of business, including law, real estate, merchandise, operations in coal, iron, oil, etc. He is a stockholder and director in various corporations; a trustee of Oberlin College, and a trustee and vice-president of Allegheny College. As a politician, he was one of conferees, who at Georgetown, in 1848, nominated Hon. John W. Howe as Free-Soil candidate from the district of Crawford, Mercer and Venango counties under circumstances which secured his election from a democratic district. He was also a delegate to the Buffalo National Convention the same year; he served three years in the senate of Pennsylvania, having in 1870 been elected by the district composed of Erie and Crawford counties; and his record in matters of special and general legislation shows faithful service. Declining to be a candidate for re-election, he built, in 1875, the Delamater Block in Meadville, Pa., a structure much admired for its arrangement and architecture, costing over $100,000. He is (in 1880) connected with the well known banking firm of Delamater & Co., at Meadville, Pa.

While George Benjamin Delamater is in the seventh generation in the line of his paternal ancestors in America, his wife, Susan Cowle, nee Town (b. in 1820), is in the eighth generation on the part of her paternal ancestors, being a descendant of William Towne, an anglo-American, born in England about A. D., 1600, who, upon emigrating to America, settled at Salem, Mass. She is a daughter of the late Noah Town, b. at Granville, N. Y., Nov. 11, 1786, and who married Susannah Martin, of French extraction, June 18, 1809. Noah Town was a son of Joseph Town, b. Feb. 22, 1761, who married Hannah Colman, a descendant of Elder Brewster, of May Flower notoriety. His nephew, Salem Town, author of various school books and other works, has a national reputation. Joseph Town was the son of Israel Town, b. Feb. 12, 1727, he was a son of Israel Towne, b. Nov. 18, 1684, who was a son of John Towne, b. April 2, 1658, who was a son of Jacob Towne, b. in 1631, who was a son of the first settler, Wm. Towne, who was living in Salem, Mass., in 1640.

The children of George B. Delamater and Susan Cowle Town were :

328 GEORGE W. DELAMATER^s, son of George B. Delamater and Susan Cowle Town, was born at Meadville, Crawford Co., Pa., Mar. 31, 1849. From the biographical sketches, furnished in the Crawford Co. Business Directory for 1881, we extract the following : "George Wallace Delamater, of the banking firm of Delamater & Co., was born in Meadville, Mar. 31, 1849. After a preliminary course of study, he was matriculated as a student of Allegheny College, and graduated at this institution in 1869, soon after which he entered upon a course of study in the law department of Harvard College, and under H. L. Richmond and Sons, which he completed and was admitted to the bar of Crawford County, Feb. 1, 1875. His liberal education, knowledge of business affairs and extensive acquaintance, supplementing his legal studies, qualify him for activity and usefulness in the practice of law, or as a banker in the firm of which he is a leading member. In 1876 he was elected mayor in the city of Meadville, and discharged the duties of the office with credit. In 1878 he was chosen senatorial delegate to the Republican State Convention at Harrisburg, and subsequently in the same year was elected chairman of the Republican County Convention, in which position he conducted an efficient and successful campaign; his industry, integrity and energy, command the confidence of a large circle of friends, and the public. “What sought they thus afar?

Bright jewels of the mine?
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
They sought a faith’s pure shrine.”—HEMANS.

APPENDIX.

At the date of this publication there may be obtained from James Riker, No. 80 Nassau St., New York, an octavo volume of 650 pages, with 17 illustrations and maps, entitled Harlem (city of New York), its origin and early annals; prefaced by home scenes in the Fatherland; or notices of its founders before emigration; also, sketches of numerous families, and the recovered history of the land titles. This title does not convey an adequate idea of this work, which embodies the researches of twenty-five years among our own and foreign records. It aims to handle the subject with fidelity. From its novel and entertaining character, and its abundant details relating to old New York families, now widely dispersed, it promises to awaken an interest and find a demand far beyond the locality of which it especially treats. It throws new light upon the subject of our early colonization; tracing its causes, operation, etc. It explores and fully describes the remote lands and places in Europe whence the first colonists came, notes their wanderings, and ultimate emigration to their final home: t Harlem, and with equal minuteness pursues their history, both individually and as an organized community; presenting a picture of that early Dutch and Huguenot settlement, its curious proceedings and customs, of very great interest. Correct texts of the Harlem Patents, so often a matter of legal reference, are now first printed. For the first, also, is revealed the origin of nearly all of the land-titles between Yorkville and Kingsbridge. The full history of the original and subsequent allotments of these lands, as given, and illustrated by tables of the numbers, owners, contents, &c., never before printed, and a map of the plots, forms a most valuable feature of the work. The carefully prepared family sketches commend themselves to the notice of intelligent descendants of their families. The index contains over 1200 different surnames, one of which is Delamater. We are permitted by the author to make the following extracts from this most interesting work for this volume:

“Northerly from La Rochelle, the rugged peninsula of Bretagne, or Brittany, jutting far into the Atlantic, is as remarkable for its strange vicissitudes, as for its dreary forests, barren heaths, pent up valleys, vast fields of Druid remains, and lone hilloeks crowned by the ruins of castles; or yet its brawny peasantry in grotesque garb and, in Lower Brittany, still speaking the harsh Celtic tongue.

Long a distinct sovereignty, it was conquered by the Norman Dukes : later an affluent Dutchy for which Charles of Blois and his race valiantly but vainly battled with the house of Montfort, it was finally engrossed by the crown.

"But not feudal nor royal tyranny could ever crush the native independence and hauteur of the Breton, which so cropped out in the case of our Claude Le Maistre (Delamater), whose ancestors were the Lords of Garlaye in the diocese of Nantes, though he happened not to be born in Brittany.

"Near La Moussaye in the interior of lower Brittany, southward from St Malo, was the original seat of the family of one David Uzille.

"The Reformed churches of Nantes and La Moussaye found in the Uzilles and Le Maitres warm supporters." (Page 54.)

After a fine description of the city of Lille, the author says (pages 54-55) :

"Round about it and all in Walloon Flanders were the large and handsome cities of Douay and Tournay, the small cities of Orchies, Armentieres, La Bassie, St. Amand, etc., and 193 boroughs and villages.

"Old towns and famed for their industries, they formed the heart of the great woollen and linen countries of the preceding centuries ; enjoying a prosperity almost fabulous, till Spanish tyranny and French conquest brought blight and ruin.

"The cruel expatriations thus caused, gave to Harlem (in New Netherlands) at least four families, who came from neighboring places on and near the Lys. Richebourg, a small city scarce noticed by gazeteers or maps, seated fourteen miles west of Lille, on a small branch of the Lys and in the district of Bethune within Artois, was the birthplace of our Claude Le Maitre (or Delamater).

"Delamater's family was from western France, his immediate ancestors probably from Picardy, whence many families seem to have worked up into Artois ; and it is pretty certain that Claude on leaving Richebourg took the course of the Walloon migration to England. (Page 73.)

"Claude Le Maistre or Delamater as usually written by his descendants, had sprung from an ancient house in Brittany, the Lords of Garlaye, whose chateau and estates lay in the parish of Derval in the diocese of Nantes.

"It was eminent in the civil and military service, the church and the law.

"Its members had held commands in Picardy where one of its now scattered branches, in which the name Claude first appears, became allied early in the sixteenth century to the Lords of Caumartin.

"Claude Le Maitre, becoming a protestant, was with others imprisoned and fined at Amiens, in 1588, at the instance of the league. He was a man of talent and spirit, and showed great valor in opposing the entrance of the Spaniards into that city in 1597, when soldiers in the garb of peasants selling nuts, had gained admission. Our Claude Le Maistre was no doubt of this family, some of whom removed into Artois. There he was born as before said in the town of Richebourg.

"After escaping the country he comes to notice at Amsterdam in 1652, an exile and a widower, living in the Tanners Cross street, having lost his wife Jeanne De Lannoy. But in April 24th, of that year, he married Hester, daughter of Pierre Du Bois, of Amsterdam; though late of Canterbury, England, where Hester was born.

"Some of the Le Maistres, had also taken refuge at Canterbury, and circumstances make it nearly certain that Claude was among them; and with the Du Boises had left England because of the civil war then raging, or the threatened rupture with Holland; and perhaps in his case to take ship for New Netherland, as he soon did so, appearing simultaneously with Tournier at Flatbush, and both subsequently at Harlem." (Page 109.)

CLAUDE LE MAISTRE AND FAMILY.

CLAUDE LE MAISTRE, as his autograph is, ancestor of the entire Delamater family in this country, having d. before the date of the Dongan patent, his widow Hester, and sons Jan and Isaac, took his place among the patentees. An exile from his home at Richebourg, in Artois, it was while living in the Loyerdwars-straat, at Amsterdam, in 1652, that Claude m. Hester Du Bois, who was his second wife, and, as we have seen, also of a French refugee family. Claude spent some of his first years in America at Flatbush, working as a carpenter, and there four of his six children were b. With Meyndert Coerten, Walraven Luten, Pierre Billiou and others (Mrs. Billiou, a Du Bois, was probably related to Mrs. Delamater*), he applied,

* PIERRE BILLIOU, was a Walloon from near Lille, and m. at Leyden, April 20, 1649, Françoise Du Bois, a sister of Louis Du Bois, later of Esopus; both, we think, of the Canterbury family of which was Mrs. Delamater; this kinship, probably, the cause of three of the Delamater children going to Esopus. Billiou had two daughters b. at Leyden. He embarked at Amsterdam, May 9, 1661 (see note p. 203), accompanied by his wife and 4 children aged 9, 7, 6 and 2½ years. They had an Isaac baptized four days after landing at New Amsterdam. Isaac was living in 1707. A son Peter, b. here in 1668, m. Maria Breese in 1701. Pierre Billiou was schout of Staten Island during the Dutch reoccupation. He and "his two sons" received a grant of three farms, 270 acres, on the south side of that island, next to Jacques Guion, laid out to them Oct. 18, 1675. He also acquired land at Piscataqua, N. J. Billiou has descendants, but now much scattered.

Aug. 22, 1661, for land on Staten Island; but only Billiou and Lutens settled there, while he and Coerten soon came to Harlem, where Delamater served four terms as a magistrate, between 1666 and 1673. He bought two allotments of land, from Daniel Tourneur, for which he took out a patent June 25, 1668. In 1675 he was chosen a deacon, but his sympathies were with the French church and service, whence arose the controversy with the town regarding the parish clerk's salary, which so disturbed his latter years. If impatient, Claude was not incapable of generous acts when approached kindly; and his obstinacy in maintaining what he conceived to be his rights can hardly be deemed a defect in his character. He d. in or about 1683, his years having exceeded three-score and ten. His children were Jan, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacobus, Susannah, b. at Flatbush, who m. Arent Harmans Bussing, and Hester, b. at Harlem, who m. Moses Le Count, of Kingston, N. Y. See p. 360. On Nov. 6, 1687, Claude's widow m. Jan Tibout, the parish clerk. In view of this event, she and Tibout had entered into an agreement, Sept. 23, preceding, with her sons Jan and Isaac, and son-in-law Bussing (who together took the real estate, having power to do so from the absent heirs, Abraham and Jacobus Delamater, and Moses Le Count), by which she was to "have the free use of the house and orf at the strand," while she lived, and Jan and Isaac were to pay her twenty-seven schepels of wheat yearly. "Should any land be drawn during Hester Du Bois's lifetime, it shall belong to them both, to wit, Jan Tibout and Hester Du Bois."

Abraham Delamater, b. at Flatbush, in 1656, removed in his early manhood, with his brother Jacobus, to Kingston, Ulster Co. He there m., in 1682, Celeste, dau. of Cornelius Vernoy. He m. a second wife, Elsie, dau. of Jurian Tappen and widow of Hillebrant Lechier. A magistrate and elder at Kingston, and prominent in public affairs, he closed a useful life Nov. 20, 1734. His children were Cornelius, b. 1683, who m. Margaret van Steenburgh; Susannah, b. 1685; Adriana, b. 1694, m. Aldert Kiersted; Johannes, b. 1697, m. Christina Wynkoop; David, b. 1701, m. Laurentia Tenbrook; Jacobus, b. 1705, m. Catrina Schoonmaker; and Abraham, b. 1707, who m. Rachel, dau. of Abraham Low. Said Abraham Delamater d. July 13, 1776, having had nine children; his son Johannes, b. April 30, 1747, d. July 18, 1811. From Cornelius, b. 1683, was descended (through Cornelius, Benjamin, and Jacob), his gt-gt-grandson, the late distinguished Dr. John Delamater, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Jacobus Delamater, Claude's youngest son, was b. at Harlem, and m. at Kingston, in 1688, Gertrude, b. 1666, dau. of Martin Cornelisz Ysselsteyn, of Claverack. He was a trustee of Kingston, and a firm supporter of the church there for some years, till he settled in Marbletown upon land (296 acres), bought in 1715, and where he d.

in 1741, leaving this property to his sons Isaac and Martin, and a farm at Claverack to his eldest son Claude. The children of Jacobus were Glaude, b. 1692, d. at Claverack about 1770, having had by his wife Christina, sons Jeremiah, Jacobus, John, and Derick, and daughters Gertrude, m. John M. Van Valkenburgh, Catalina Christina, m. John Van Deusen, and Rachel, m. John Leggett, Jr.; Isaac, b. 1694, known as Capt. Delamater, who m. his cousin, Rebecca Delamater, removed from Marbletown to Amenia, Dutchess Co., served in the French war, was a justice of the peace, and d. 1775; Martha, b. 1696; Jacobus, b. 1699; Martin, b. 1701, who m. Elizabeth Nottingham, and was succeeded in his large property in Marbletown, in 1768, by his son Jacobus; Bata, b. 1703, m. John Leg; Hester, b. 1706; Cornelius, b. 1708, m. Catalina Osterhout; Jennetie, b. 1711, m. Joris Middagh, and Susannah, b. 1713, who m. Thomas Nottingham. The N. E. Hist. and Gen. Register, for 1860, gives a Delamater Genealogy, which abounds in errors, but may afford some aid in extending the foregoing branches of the family.

Jan Delamater, of Harlem, eldest son of Claude, was b. in 1653, at Flatbush, m., in 1678, Ruth, dau. of Resolved Waldron, and was, as we have seen, a worthy and useful resident. He operated considerably in lands. On March 7, 1676, he and Jan Nagel bought Journee's property. Dividing it July 14, 1677, Delamater took the house and lot and No. 14 Van Keulen's Hook. He soon sold the latter, but afterward acquired Nos. 10, 11, in the same tract, and No. 7 of the New Lots. He also succeeded to an erf and 9 morgen of the paternal lands; this giving him the lower half of the farm on Montanye's Flat, lot No. 12 Van Keulen's Hook, and the two north gardens next the church-lot. He now sold No. 7 New Lots to Samuel Waldron, April 21, 1688, leased his three lots on Van Keulen's Hook to Joost van Oblinus, and on the same date conveyed the Journee erf to Peter van Oblinus, who sold it to Jacques Tourneur, Aug. 7, 1691. In May, 1690, Delamater bartered his Van Keulen's Hook lots for others on Hoorn's Hook, to which he removed. See App. II. On Oct. 25, 1702, being "sick in bed," he made his will, giving his wife a life use of his estate. The will was proved Sept. 9, 1703, only a few days before the widow m. Henry Bogert, of Marbletown, to which place she removed with some of her children. The Hoorn's Hook farm and other lands of Jan Delamater were sold, in 1710, to Samuel Waldron. His children who survived infancy were Susannah, b. 1682, who m. Albert Low, of H., and went to Somerset Co., N. J.; Cornelia, b. 1685, who m. her step-brother Cornelius Bogert; Abraham, b. 1689, m. Jan. 19, 1711, his step-sister Sarah Bogert, and settled at North Branch; Tanneke, b. 1692, m. her step-brother, Martin Bogert, who had previously lived at Harlem; Hester, b. 1694, who m. John Lewis; and Catharine, b. 1697, who, I believe m. Wm. Van Gaasbeck, of Kingston.

Isaac Delamater of Harlem, third son of Glaude, was b. 1658, at Flatbush, and m. about 1681, Cornelia Everts (van Ness?), of Albany, a sister of Rebecca Everts, wife of Jerome Barheyt, of that place. Both Isaac and wife united with the church at New York, Dec. 3d, 1681, though living at Harlem, where he was afterward a deacon. Later, he served the town as a commissioner, also as constable. Isaac obtained the upper half of his father's farm on Montanye's Flat, called 6 morgen or 12 acres. He leased it, with house, garden, orchard, and half the meadow, to Jan Tibont, Feb. 13, 1688, for 12 years. Isaac drew lot No. 11, Jochem Pieters Hills, which he sold to Jan Dyckman. He resumed his farm, and occupied it as late as Dec. 3, 1726, on which date he conveyed all his lands to his son John. He or his son Isaac bought No. 6 New Lots from Nich. Kortright, in 1729, and sold it in 1731, to Johannes Waldron. His children were Hester, b. 1683, at Albany, who m. Simon van Ness, from that place, but in 1716, a farmer at Newark, N. J.; Evertie, b. 1685, m., 1713, Bernardus Verveelen, of Rockland Co., N. Y.; John, b. 1687, of whom hereafter; Abraham and Isaac, twins, b. 1693; Rebecca, b. 1696, who m. Capt. Isaac Delamater, of Marbletown and Amenia; Jacob, b. 1699, not further noticed; Susannah, who m. Johannes B. Waldron, and Cornelia, who m. Cornelius Quackenbos, of Harlem. Abraham m., Feb. 21, 1718, Catharine, dau. of Capt. John Benson, and was owner from 1727 to 1742 of the Louvre, or Jones' Woods Farm. He lived for some years at Tappan, on the Hudson, but returned to New York, where he d. Dec. 8, 1771. His children so far as known, were 1. Catharine, who m. Henry Brevoort; 2. Isaac, who m., Nov. 26, 1744, Maria Richardson, and had issue Catharine, b. Dec. 24, 1745, William, b. Jan. 19, 1747, Abraham, b. Sept. 7, 1749, John, b. April 22, 1752; 3. John, m. Phebe Maby, and had Abraham, b. Jan. 29, 1751, Catalina, b. Feb. 19, 1753, etc.; and 4. Elizabeth, who m., 1750, Cornelius Vanderhoof. Isaac, m. Aug. 9, 1717, Belitie, dau. of Barent Waldron. They had, 1. Barent, b. at Harlem, 1720, m., 1745, Rachel Jewel, bought a farm in Mount Pleasant, Westchester Co., was a deacon, 1773, of Tarrytown church, had a son Isaac, and daughters m. to Knapp, Devoe, Shule, and Lanigan, and d. 1812, leaving his farm to Isaac; 2. Isaac, m. Jannetie Flierboom, and was father of Isaac, b. at Tappan, Sept. 1, 1751, who m. Jannetie Myer, and was father of Jacobus Flierboom Delamater, b. Jan. 27, 1782, and John Delamater, b. July 4, 1787; 3. John, of New York, carpenter, m. Jannetie Post, 1755, and had Isaac, b. 1757, John, 1762, d. young, Evert, 1770, and John, 1773; and 4. Abraham, b. in 1732, m. Maria, dau. of Harmanus Vandewater, of Bloomingdale, and had 8 children, one of whom, Isaac, was the father of Mrs. Jacob Weeks, and another, Catharine, m. John Wilson, of New York, father of James B. Wilson, Esq., formerly president of the bank of the Commonwealth.

John Delamater, b. 1687, m. in 1714, Anneke, dau. of John Waldron, and in 1718 was elected constable. In 1715 he bought the property of his aunt, Aeltie Vermilye, who removed to Westchester. This consisted of lot No. 5 of 1691, and her drafts in the four divisions, 31 acres in all, with a village seat. In 1719 he added 30 acres from Matthew Benson (since in the Samson A. Benson farm), and next, in 1726, his father's lands, giving him a total of 99 acres. In 1729 he sold four acres (the Vermilye 1st Div.), to John Waldron, and in 1737, the 30 acres aforesaid, to Adolph Benson. The rest of his lands, 65 acres, in which was included the farm on Montanye's Flat, and said lot No. 5, he sold, March 15, 1742, to Arent Kortright, who afterward m. his dau. John Delamater d. soon after, and on March 24, 1744, his will was admitted to probate, and his son-in-law Myer allowed to administer. His daughters were Anneke, who m. Samuel Waldron, of Newtown; Cornelia, who m. John Myer, Jr.; Susannah, who m. Isaac Day, blacksmith, of Hackensack, later of Harlem, and who kept the noted Day Tavern; Margaret, who m. Aaron Kortright; Rebecca, who m. Lewis Williams, and Hester. His sons were 1. John, the eldest, of N. Y., carpenter, who m. Elizabeth Post, and had issue John, b. 1754, Rebecca, b. 1757, Isaac, b. 1759, Elizabeth, b. 1762, Isaac, b. 1764, Abraham, b. 1765; 2. Isaac, who m. Anna Pearse, and had John, b. 1750, Anna, b. 1755, Joseph, b. 1761 (sold their house in Frankfort street, March 17, 1775); 3. Samuel, "of the Ont Ward, cordwainer," Oct. 3, 1756, when he m. PRINCIPLES, RELIGIOUS BELIEF AND OCCUPATIONS OF CLAUDE
LA MAITRE AND FAMILY.

He was one of many, who, at that period, believed in a Supreme Deity who created man and all things on earth for His own wise purpose ; they believed in the Saviour Jesus Christ the Son of God; the resurrection of the body, and the life everlasting ; they wanted freedom of thought and action, to obtain this they were obliged to seek protection in other lands. They heard of this (then) new country America and came to it. They were, both men and women, of a high order— athletic, intelligent, of indomitable will and a determination to be free and give freedom of thought and action to all the world—were willing to endure the privations and hardships of emigrating thousands of miles from their homes, with no hope of returning, to the end that they might successfully establish the desired object.

Claude accumulated wealth by his industry and exemplary habits. He left a name of which his posterity may be proud. It is of great value to know the history of our ancestors and pleasing to find they were men and women of irreproachable character, promoters of religion and worthy citizens. We find Claude's children members of the Reformed Dutch church wherever they were living.

Abraham and Jacobus, who settled at Kingston two hundred years ago, were deacons and elders in the church ; they were farmers, became wealthy and held offices of trust.

Isaac, son of Jacobus, bore the title of Captain Isaac De Le Maitre ; he was a military officer ; went with his company to Canada when the French were invading the English territory. He returned to his farm at the Oblong (Amenia) where he had settled about 1745 ; this farm comprised several hundred acres (in recent times owned by Mr Reed), extending from the top of the East mountain to the top of West mountain ; two burying grounds, one of which he gave to his slaves, were located in the meadow opposite his house, it is only within a few years that the fence and monuments have been removed. He was a justice of the peace, a quaint and original genius. Major Jacob Delamater, of Florida, N. Y., informed his family that when quite young he saw at his grandfather's a gentleman's suit of broad-cloth, ornamented with silver buttons and highly ornamented knee buckles, supposed to have been worn by Captain Isaac. His son John, who married Maria Kip, settled on a farm given to him by his father ; he built what was at that date considered an elegant brick house, which is now standing on the stream and near the bridge at Leadville ; the farm must have covered the whole of the land where the city of Leadville now stands.

Our ancestors sought freedom, under the protection of the government of Holland, in America, which they enjoyed for many years. When English government prevailed, some of them took the oath of allegiance to the crown. We find that (in 1688) they performed military duty and were loyal citizens. When heavy burdens of taxes were imposed, and laws enacted to deprive them of their rights and liberties, we find the Delamaters among the early patriots for American freedom. They were among the first to assist in person and with money.

The Oblong, now Amenias, was a strip of land about seven miles long and four miles wide at the centre. The boundary line of the states of New York and Massachusetts not being perfectly fixed at that time, one portion of it, the eastern, was governed by the laws of Massachusetts, and the other, the western, by the laws of New York. In 1776 there were three classes of people at this place—patriots, neutrals and tories: the feeling was so bitter that the patriots held their meetings for organization and plans for sustaining measures in secret. Some of these meetings were held at Johannus (John) Delamater's, in the cellar. As his son, Abraham, has often related, he was then about ten years of age, and passed around eider among them; they gave him some silver coins which not only pleased him, but fixed the event upon his memory as long as he lived.

Johannus (John) did not shoulder his musket; it is said he had sixteen hundred ($1600) dollars in silver lying idle in his chest; when the government solicited aid from the people, he freely loaned the money, in four notes, payable with interest. He rested quietly for many years, when learning that these notes were to be redeemed by government, he in the meantime having sold his farm and removed to Chatham, N. Y., about ten miles from Kinderhook landing, which was then a market place for shipping produce to New York, he sent one of the notes by a captain of a sloop to New York for collection, which was paid at a discount. He placed the other three notes into the same captain's hands; his son Abraham, who was studying medicine at Cambridge, N. Y., hearing that government was paying these loans in full with interest, came home to acquaint his father of it; they went immediately to the river (traveling ten miles) in time to recover the notes from the captain, thereby securing full pay and interest.

Isaac, the eldest son, then (1776) about 24 years of age, joined the army as commissary and served through the war.

Benjamin, a younger son, about 18 years of age, went into service, and was on the Mohawk under Col. Willett; he served till the close of the war.

Hendrick, the youngest son of Capt. Isaac, it is said, was in the American army on the Mohawk; while engaged in a battle at a fort, he received a wound in the head from a tomahawk in the hands of an Indian; trepanning with silver was adopted to save his life. He sold his farm at Amenias, losing heavily by the depreciation of Continental currency, of which he had a large amount ; he removed and settled at Kinderhook, N. Y., where he died.

This volume is not intended to give a biography of the Delamater family, individually, nor to either boast of superior blood-characteristics or traits. They are American citizens, alike to all, proud of their country, possessing some peculiar traits of character, as a family, that have lived through successive generations from 1652.

In 1675, Claude Le Maitre was chosen deacon of the Reformed church at Harlem, but his sympathies were with the French church and service. He was obstinate in maintaining his rights, or what he conceived to be his rights, as shown by controversy with the town regarding the parish clerk's salary. This trait has lived with the family to the present.

If a Delamater meets one of the name in any place, he is immediately looked upon as a near relative and welcomed to the hospitality of the other.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE AND DISPOSITION.

The Delamaters are above the medium statute, fair complexion, affable, agreeable, industrious, having high ideas of education, although not attained by all, still the spirit exists. It has been said that "they all look alike." The writer could relate many instances to illustrate this, of personally meeting strangers who have turned out to bear the family name. They are proud but not haughty, and despise a mean action or low character, and believe in doing unto others as they would have them do unto themselves.

PURSUIITS AND OCCUPATIONS.

Originally the Delamaters were farmers, and many are such to the present day. Some are engaged in mercantile pursuits ; others in the different trades ; some in the professions, doctors, ministers and lawyers, professors of colleges, teachers, bankers, contractors of public work, and in fact are represented in almost every industry. Some have been congressmen, representatives in senate and assembly in their various states. They have, mostly, been successful in what they have undertaken, and reaped the wealth and happiness they have so deservedly earned.

The eldest child of Claude was born in 1653, from that date we trace the blood descendants in this country—229 years. It is not possible to state how many inherit the blood and name now. They are scattered all over the country, and number many thousands.

May the good traits of our ancestors instill in us and our descendants an ambition to carry out their noble, honorable and manly qualities in our own lives, that we and ours may be blessed both of men and of God.

INCIDENTS.

Riker's History of Harlem abounds in incidents involving Claude Le Maitre and his family after his settlement at Harlem.

He served as magistrate and otherwise, and had law suits and other experiences.

At the time of the onslaught of the Indians and slaughter of citizens at Esopus, June 7, 1663; apprehension of danger at Harlem, caused preparation to be made promptly for defence. Claude Le Maitre had sold his farm and two lots at Flatbush, July 31st, 1662, and was now at Harlem. Measures were taken June 12, to enclose the village with a line of stockades. Ten persons were appointed to cut, and four to haul palisades, two to procure arms and ammunition, etc.

Three small military companies were formed and the older and more capable persons were put in command. Claude Le Maitre was one of these; firelocks and muskets with a pound of powder, were distributed to each. The Indians having been defeated several times, apprehension from trouble of this kind ceased. The names of Claude and his sons Jan and Isaac, appear often in lists of various kinds. Riker states (History of Harlem, 294), that Claude, and Hester Du Bois, his wife, joined in making their will, April 15th, 1670, though he survived a dozen years, and she forty.

WILL OF CLAUDE LE MAITRE AND HESTER DU BOIS.

"In the year of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, 1670, the 15th of April, appeared before me Jan. La Montaigne, Jun., admitted secretary of this town by the Honorable Mayor's Court, residing within the jurisdiction of New Harlem, Claude Le Maistre and Hester Du Bois, husband and wife, of sound memory and understanding as externally appears; and of mind to make a disposition of their temporal estate.

First, On resting in the Lord, they commit their souls into the hands of the Most High God, and their bodies to decent burial, and fifty guilders in Sewant to the poor in this place.

Secondly, They annul all testaments and codicils that before this were made, and declare this mutual testament to be their final will.

One of them having deceased, the survivor is to continue in full possession, till again married, when the marrying party shall place into the hands of two guardians thereto appointed by the court, a full amount of all; remaining in possession until the children arrive at age, or are married with the consent of father or mother: on condition of placing in the hands of the guardians a mortgage upon the real estate, so the same be not alienated. Excluding or renouncing herewith all orphan courts, or laws which may conflict with these provisions. In presence of David des Marest, Joost Van Oblinus and Marcus du Sauchoy, as witnesses hereto requested, who beside the testators have subscribed these presents.

INTERMARRIAGES WITH THE KIPS.

Among the relations by marriage contracted by the Delamaters, the marriage of three sons of Capt. Isaac Delamater, and his wife Rebecca, of the third generation, to three daughters of Johannes Kip and wife, is for various reasons peculiarly interesting.

John De Le Maitre married Maria Kip, Feb. 1st, 1752.

Isaac De Le Maitre married Eva Kip, Feb. 1st, 1752.

Hendrick De Le Maitre married Catharine Kip about 1764.

Johannes Kip, the father of Maria, Eva and Catharine above named, was a son of Jacobus Kip and his wife Catharine De Hart; his wife was Margaret Van Ettan.

Jacobus Kip was a son of Johannes Kip and Catharine Kierstede his wife, and was born Oct. 22, 1682.

Catharine Kierstede was a daughter of Dr. Hans Kierstede, a physician of Amsterdam, and his wife Sarah Roleoff, to whom he was married, Jan. 29, 1642, in a fort at New Amsterdam.

Sarah Roleoff was before marriage daughter of Annetje Jans Webber, said to be a granddaughter of William, Prince of Orange; she was born in Holland, in 1605, and having married Jan (John) Roleoff, emigrated with her husband to New Amsterdam, becoming one of the early settlers. Having lost her first husband, Roleoff, she married second, Everardus E. Bogardus, one of the first pastors in New York. She became by grants to her and otherwise, interested in large real estates, and it is claimed that Trinity church is in possession, wrongfully, of interests belonging to some of her heirs.

As the Kip family and their descendants are involved in this claim, estimated at millions of dollars, it gives additional interest to their marriages and genealogies.

Johannes Kip, who married Catharine Kierstede about 1680, was a son of Isaac Kip, who was of a well known and highly respected family, for an account of which see Am. Gen. and the N. Y. G. and B. record for 1877.

Isaac Kip was born at Amsterdam, in 1627 ; he was much respected at Harlem and became a magistrate in 1675. His first wife was Catalina, daughter of Hendrick Jansen. Their children were : 1. Hendrick ; 2. Tryntie ; 3. Abraham ; 4. Isaac ; 5. Jacobus ; 6. Johannes, who married Catharine Kierstede as above stated.

EXTRACTS FROM A SERMON DELIVERED AT THE FUNERAL OF JOHN DELAMATER, M. D., LL. D., AT CLEVELAND, OHIO, APRIL 2, 1867, BY W. H. GOODRICH, D. D.

Acts xiii: 36. For David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers.

The Scriptures speak with great brevity and simplicity of the dead. But few lines of sacred writ anywhere are given to the celebration even of the greatest names of history. Of David himself, the man after God's own heart, the most royal of kings, it is said only, that "after he had served his own generation by the will of God, he fell on sleep." Yet what eulogy could say more? What better testimony can be given of any man, than that he has served his generation by the will of God? All that we can recount of human virtue and excellence comes at last to this test: Was the work of life done? Were surrounding lives blessed by it? Was God's will owned and followed? This is the highest expression of human worth, a life consecrated to the good of one's generation, in obedience to the will of God. The instance is comparatively rare, in which, reviewing the course of a long life, we can say, "the whole of this life was well spent. These talents were every one of them improved. This man 'served his own generation by the will of God.'"

The character of this venerable man whose remains here await their burial, would seem to bear distinctively this impress. We say, whether we knew him only in his age, or whether we have been made familiar with the record of his earlier and more vigorous years: "This life has had no waste. These fourscore years have been filled with honest, faithful, fruitful service to his fellow men, and with reverent and cheerful duty to his God."

Dr. Delamater was born April 18th, 1787, in the town of Chatham, N. Y. His family was of French origin, as the name indicates ; his ancestors having been Huguenot exiles who found refuge in Holland. There they intermarried with the people of the country, and the traces of that Dutch descent were noticeable in his features. His father was a farmer, and this son was originally destined to no other occupation. A slight injury from over labor when a lad, unfitted him for farm work, and it was concluded as the next best thing to educate him for the ministry. At that early day the opportunities of good schooling were few ; but the removal of the family to Duanesburgh, in what was then Albany county, now Schenectady, brought them into a neighborhood more than usually furnished with means of instruction. John Delamater, in common with the children of a few adjoining families, was taught for some years by a thoroughly educated clergyman, who had himself been trained abroad. As he grew toward manhood his own inclination was toward the profession of law ; and no one acquainted with him can doubt that he would have risen to eminence at the bar and probably on the bench, for he had a singularly judicial mind. Yielding however to the objections of his father, he gave up that preference, and entered with ardor on the study of medicine. At the age of nineteen he graduated, or, more exactly, was licensed to practice by the Medical Society of the county of Otsego, and entered immediately into partnership with his uncle, Dr. Dorr, a physician in Chatham. After three years he removed to Florida, a town in Montgomery county ; and, after a year spent at Albany, in 1815 he established himself in Sheffield, Berkshire county, Mass. It was during his residence of eight years in that place that his singular professional ability began to be recognized, and in 1823 he was invited to a professorship in the Berkshire Medical Institute, at Pittsfield. Here his peculiar capacity as a lecturer was developed and appreciated, and when, in 1827, a new medical school was opened by the Regents of the State of New York, for the benefit of the Western District, at Fairfield, Herkimer county, he was called to a leading position in its faculty. He was a man for new enterprises, and readily gave himself to an almost frontier work in scientific education. For at least eight years he remained at Fairfield, in this honorable and useful work. Probably no portion of his life was more full of unalloyed enjoyment than the twenty years embraced in his residence at Sheffield, Pittsfield and Fairfield. The heavy and protracted trials which weighed upon him in later years, had not yet begun. His home was pleasant with the vivacity of children. His hospitalities were constant and large. He was active in every good cause, and especially valued as an office bearer in the church. His doors were open to all the ministers of Christ, and his society was sought by the most eminent in that profession. If no preacher appeared, he could conduct religious services to the edification of the people. His reputation was wide spread, and a place was universally accorded him in the front rank of physicians the country over. Dr. Jackson, of Boston, then perhaps of the first authority in the profession, in replying to the letter of a gentleman in Utica, who had sought his counsel in a peculiarly grave and obscure malady, said, "You have no need to write to me. You have Dr. Delamater near at hand, than whom there is no abler practitioner in the country." This was his acknowledged position at the age of forty. From Fairfield he removed to Willoughby in this State, having previously visited Ohio and delivered a course of lectures in Cincinnati, where he was urgently solicited to remain as a permanent instructor. Following an instinct, however, which always led him to shun great cities, he chose his work in the Medical Institute at Willoughby, where he remained for about six years. In 1842 he removed to this then modest city, and took part with a corps of able coadjutors in the establishment of the Cleveland Medical College, a branch of the Western Reserve College. For the last twenty-five years his home has been in this community, and his person, his character, and his services have been familiar probably to most of those who are here present.

In this rapid outline of his life and its changes, I have omitted many of the incidental labors which he discharged. His reputation as an instructor made him desired in regions widely separated, and the versatility of his powers, which enabled him to lecture with equal ability in almost every department of medical science, caused him to be sought for by every institution whose corps of teachers might be in any part imperfect. While regularly engaged in the professorship already named, he found time to deliver full courses of lectures at Bowdoin College, at Dartmouth, at Geneva, and at Cincinnati. The manuscript notes left by him show that he had delivered at least seventy courses of lectures, treating almost every subject which belongs to medical science. He closed his labors in 1860, at the age of seventy-five, having probably shared in the education of more young men in the science of medicine, than any instructor of his time. When he resigned his active duties in connection with the college, he was made Professor Emeritus, and received at the same time the title of Doctor of Laws. Though released from stated service, he continued to practice so far as his own infirmities permitted, and his opinion was often sought for, especially in obscure and doubtful cases of disease. Consenting to take the place of one of the professors, absent temporarily on duties arising out of the recent war, he went on day by day till he had delivered fifty lectures—the last of his public instructions.

He was plain in his person, plain in attire, plain in manner, plain in thought, plain in speech, and plain in action. It was the plainness, not of paucity, but of strength and of intellectual clearness. Nothing unreal or artificial ever adhered to him, for a moment. He could not affect in anything to be other than he was. He was a man of high cultivation and of true refinement, but he had no taste for much which commonly passes for refinement. Many things were superfluous to him, which to others become necessities. He had few, perhaps no indulgencies. He depended very little upon circumstances. He carried his resources, both mental and manual, in a compact form.

He appreciated every improvement and advancement of science and availed himself of it ; but he leaned very little on other minds. He did his own thinking, and in his own way. He knew distinctly what he wanted, and gleaned rapidly from books, wasting no time over that which had not positive value. Whatever he acquired he tested, and thoroughly appropriated by reflection. He was sometimes slow in coming to conclusions, for he worked them out by logical processes, never depending upon mere intuitions. But his decisions when formed were abiding and laid foundations for all after thought and practice.

He was repeatedly solicited to take prominent positions in some of the chief cities of the country, but declined, giving to his own friends the reason that it would bring him into a style of life not his own. He loved the country, the plain life in which he was born. He spoke the pure Saxon of the common people, and never went about for a fine word. His style whether in conversation or in the lecture room, was as lucid as water. And the course of his thought was as clear. His mind seemed to hold nothing in a crude or confused state. Everything fell into order and sequence, and stood ready for utterance in the plainest and most concise form. As a means of conveying knowledge or of stating facts, the English language has probably never been better used by any man of his time. While he spoke, few thought how well he was speaking ; but when he had finished it was clear that there was nothing more of importance on that subject to be said.

It was a second trait of Dr. Delamater that he was absolutely just. The singleness of his intellect had its counterpart in the perfect integrity of his moral nature.

And whatever defects he may have shared with men at large, his truth and fidelity and honor were absolutely unblemished. He could not be a partisan. As a witness in court he sometimes carried conviction and virtually closed the case, by the mere weight of his clear veracity. Unwritten obligations bound him more firmly than most men are bound by statutes. Even natural affection did not influence for a moment his Roman sentiment of justice. Justice should be done always, everywhere, though it should smite close to his own life. Duty with him was a matter of course. His conscientiousness of labor was especially remarkable. He accomplished an incredible amount of professional work in his vigorous years. While lecturing twice or thrice a day at Pittsfield during the sessions of the Medical Institute, he would frequently ride down late in the afternoon to Sheffield, full twenty miles, attend far into night to scattered cases of sickness, catch a brief rest, rise at day-break and ride as far as Stockbridge to breakfast, and while breakfast was preparing, he would note on a hand's breadth of paper the materials of the lectures of the day, and ride in to Pittsfield in season to meet his classes. Speaking to a young physician in the confidence of friendship, he once said, what very few men in any walk of life have ever been able to say, that "through his most active years he never went to bed without the consciousness, that he had done that day all that any man could require of him, professionally or otherwise."

His rectitude, strict as it was toward himself, was never rigorous or exacting in regard to others. Toward friends, especially toward his household, it took the form of a fidelity most delicate and beautiful.

No one ever saw in him a trace of cant or affectation ; but no one ever found him hesitating in any circumstances to avow his church belief or his own church obligations. Religion was in him the underlying and controlling element. Its manifestations were not superficial or occasional, but vital and constant. His piety flowed naturally throughout his thought and his conduct, and was often most present when least observed. With all his native resource and acquired skill, he recognised his implicit dependence upon divine support in common duties. He never, it is believed, entered on any critical operation as a surgeon without having made the case a subject of special prayer. His family devotions never were omitted, whatever might be the pressure of his professional calls. The course of every day was hallowed from its commencement, in his household, by a calm and unhurried communion with the scriptures and with God. He was devotedly attached to the ordinances of the Church, and loved the fellowship of God's people. Living in many places, he always identified himself with the local church, either Presbyterian or Congregational, as he chanced to find it, and for thirty years he held the office of elder in the one, or deacon in the other. It was his own request that these funeral services should take place from this church, where he was for many years a ruling elder, and where he worshipped constantly until his infirmities and retirement from active life removed him from his accustomed place.

COMMUNICATION FROM HON. G. B. DELAMATER.

It seems that you are engaged in writing and compiling a genealogy of some branches of the descendants of Claude Delamater and Hester his wife, who came to America in 1652, with a brief narrative of some of their early experiences in this country, and a reference to their children, who ultimately made their homes in Harlem, Esopus, New York and Kingston.

The allusion in your records to these places, in connection with the Delamaters, justifies a reference to them more definitely in order to appreciate the narrative more fully.

The ancient village of Harlem, now incorporated into the city of New York, was situated on the north-east part of Manhattan Island. This island, now covered by New York city, is about fourteen miles long and averages about one and one-half miles wide, with the Hudson river at the west ; East river on the south and south-east ; Harlem river on the north-east ; and Spuyten Duyvel on the north. Harlem Village was situated on Harlem river, about seven miles from the New York City Hall.

Flatbush (Midwout) is a village on Long Island opposite New York city, about five miles southward from Brooklyn.

Kingston and Esopus are in Ulster Co. (Kingston being the county seat) about fifty-five miles southward from Albany.

Esopus was burnt by the Indians in an early day. The house is still standing in Kingston in which the first constitution of the state was framed. These places were all settled about the same time as New York and Albany.

The Delamaters were among the first pioneers in these ancient villages. They did military duty at Harlem and Esopus ; and filled positions of trust in these places and at Kingston. In 1777, the British took and burnt Kingston ; and the home of Peter Delamater, whose wife was a Miss Dean, niece of Silas Dean, of Revolutionary memory, was laid in ashes on that occasion.

In considering some matters referred to in your manuscript, it will be well to recall the history of the times.

Hudson discovered this region in 1609 ; the West India Co., secured the first permanent colonies in 1623 ; Cornelius May, becoming the first director or governor. He was succeeded by Wm. Verhulst ; who in 1626 was succeeded by Peter Minnet, who bought Manhattan Island of the Indians, for about $24. He was succeeded in 1632 by Wouter Van Twiller who was succeeded in 1638, by William Kieft.

In 1648 Peter Stuyvesant became governor and so continued till 1664, when the New Netherlands being overpowered by an English force, Richard Nichols became governor, under the Duke of York, and the name was changed to New York. Subsequently Francis Lovelace became governor ; but in 1673 a Dutch squadron recaptured New York and it was held for about fifteen months, when it again passed to the English, where under a treaty it permanently remained, and Andros became governor. He was succeeded in 1683 by Thomas Dongan, who in two years was succeeded by Henry Slaughter. These different administrations covered the period in which the Delamaters were being established and residents in the places we have named above.

They became interested in patents, issued at various times.

Claude Le Maitre (Delamater), after residing at Flatbush about ten years, sold his farm and two lots there, and removed in 1662 to Harlem. Here he bought from Tournier two allotments of land (originally held by Cousseau) and subsequently obtained a patent for them. This was about the period when Esopus having been burned by the Indians, the people of Harlem fortified and made provision for defence, and Claude Le Maitre's name appears in the list of the Citizen Military.

In 1664, the government of the Province having passed to the English, Nichols, the governor in 1666, issued a patent to the people of Harlem with many privileges ; followed by a supplemental one in 1667, more full and explicit in its provisions.

On June 12, 1666, Claude Delamater and three others were chosen overseers of Harlem. Their duties may be inferred from the following oath which was taken by them in the mayor's court June 19, of that year.

"WHEREAS, You Daniel Tourner, as under sheriff, and you Joost Oblinus, Isaac Vermilye, Claude Delamater and Nelis Matthysen, by the Honorable Mayor's Court, are chosen as overseers of the village of New Harlem, for the term of one succeeding year, beginning upon this date ; you men swear, in the presence of Almighty God, that you will, to the best of your knowledge, and with a good conscience, maintain the laws of this government, without respect of persons, in all suits that shall be brought before you ; to the sum of 200 guilders :—You men so far as able shall execute the laws for the benefit of your town, and the inhabitants of the same :—so truly help you God." Thus was instituted the first local court in Harlem, in which the people enjoyed under the English rule the right of maintaining their own magistrates. Claude Delamater served four terms in this court. In the list of land-holders made May 1, 1670, showing their names, and the amount paid by each in obtaining the Nichols patent ; we find Claude's name second in order. (See Riker's History of Harlem for particulars, page 296.) In 1775, occurred the King Philip Indian war, which caused much alarm, and among the names of the guard on duty we find John and Isaac Delamater, sons of Claude, also Resolved Waldron, and Isaac Kip.

This Resolved Waldron was an energetic and distinguished citizen, who held with credit many important posts of trust.

Isaac Kip was also a pioneer, prominent and reliable. In later times there were intermarriages between the Delamaters, Kips and Waldrons. These families were interesting, and made good records.

In 1685 James II, Duke of York came to the throne, and for various reasons a new patent was issued to the people of Harlem, by the governor ; known as the Dongan Patent. It confirmed previous grants, and defined the duties and rights of the parties thereto more specifically.

Claude Delamater had died in 1683, leaving Hester Du Bois his widow and a family, of which Abraham, Jacobus and Hester had removed to Esopus, or Kingston; Susanna was married; John and Isaac, with Hester the widow, continued to reside at Harlem; were interested and named in this grant, which is dated March 7, 1686. They are shown to have paid their proportion of the expense of procuring the patent.

Under the provisions of the will, made by Claude and Hester in a peculiar manner in those peculiar times, she was interested in this transaction. Jan Tibont, who as parish clerk and otherwise, often appears in various records as managing matters relating to church, schools, etc., married Hester, the widow of Claude, Nov. 6, 1687.

Matters relating to the estate of Claude were amicably arranged as proposed in his will. It may be noted, that while Claude was the name of Le Maitre, his associates at Harlem, so largely from Holland, substituted "G" for "C," and in writing and pronunciation made it Glaude.

A point of land projecting into Harlem river, in which Claude was interested, was known as Claude's Point, and finally as Glaude's Point, or Glaudie's Point, and so appears on some maps.

Allusion has been made to the will of Claude Le Maitre, and Hester his wife.

"In executing a deed, bill of sale, or other contract," says Riker, "custom requires the parties to appear with two witnesses before the town secretary, who, after hearing their statement, wrote out the instrument in his register, receiving for such service a fee of thirty stivers."

When signed by all the parties this remained as the original. Wills, in the making of which the wife commonly joined with her husband (thus making it mutually fair and mutually binding), were executed in a similar way. A will in the usual form gave to the "longest liver" the use of the property for life, or till re-marriage, after which it went equally to the children or other heirs. Sometimes in default of heirs it fell to the deacons for the use of the poor of the church.

I notice in Claude's and Hester's will a clause providing for the payment of fifty guilders, in sewant, for the poor of the place. Sewant is another name for wampum, which was used by the Indians, and adopted awhile by the Dutch of New Netherland, as money. It consisted of tubular beads made from shells, perforated lengthwise, and fastened with thread upon strips of cloth. Other money was scarce; this sewant was largely used for ornament among the Indians, and answered better for purchasing furs from them than coin.

It was received in church contributions as money, the black beads were of twice the value of white ones. For a time it was almost the only money in circulation.

Riker in his History of Harlem (471) alludes to the fact that the French Huguenots at Harlem, so prominent in its early history, had at a later date generally disappeared, either by death or by removal, but that a few of the wealthier families remained, as the Tourners, Montaneys, De Le Maitres (Delamaters) and De Voes, held either by property ties, or intermarriage with the Hollanders, to whom by degrees they became assimilated. In closing his interesting volume, its author furnishes vivid pictures of the social and domestic life of the original settlers and such of their descendants as have inherited or retained their customs.

He takes us back (page 477) to the families where, in old age, the memories of the fatherland are cherished, and lets us hear Mrs. Delamater (Hester), the daughter of a refugee, depicting her young life at Canterbury, and the humble abode where she was born and reared; where also on the quiet Sabbath she was wont to accompany her parents to the grand old cathedral, and down by a flight of stone steps into the solemn crypt or vault, where the French and Walloons used to meet for Divine service.

In this letter I have referred to the early settlement of our ancestors, and their relation to some of the patents or grants of land, with a few incidents of that period.

Those old papers illustrate the history of the times and, where they have personal interest, would be worthy of a place in such a work, if space could be afforded.

These old generations have passed away, and their children in the sixth, seventh and eight generations, and those allied to them by marriage, or otherwise, are to be found, as native Americans, in various parts of our broad land. Your volume is for them, and their successors.

Those worthy sires have many worthy sons. There are names allied by marriage or descent of whom I am proud, but which I refrain from mentioning here. There are some whose blood has been tinged by a descent from Claude Le Maitre, their names stand for honor, integrity, manhood, womanhood. A few have held high positions in the public service; many are sovereign private citizens.

May we not hope that the future will give the Delamaters a record of womanly women and manly men, which, in some still more elaborate work, may be added to what I believe will be your already extended and valuable volume.

MEADVILLE, PA., April 6, 1882.

PATENTS—CHARTERED RIGHTS IN HARLEM.

It seems that the directors and council of New Netherlands under the Dutch government, had from the earliest settlement of Manhattan, allowed certain parties to occupy and possess lands in the north-east part of that island, upon condition of their improvement. After some years of occupancy they were unable to perform this condition effectually, and the government resumed their control, and resolved to form a village there. The object was not only to promote the settlement of the district and obtain some income from this source, "but to enhance the safety of the city of New Amsterdam by planting a strong village with a garrison, on this frontier-end of the island."

As the lands had been occupied subject to the imperative condition that they should be brought under tillage; not to comply would have forfeited them, even though a patent had issued.

The right of eminent domain was exercised in this case, and it is believed that all parties interested, consented and approved thereof. The result of this conjunction of circumstances, was the following:

ORDINANCE.

The director general and council of New Netherlands, hereby give notice that for the further promotion of agriculture, for the security of this island and the cattle pasturing thereon; as well as for the further relief and expansion of the city of Amsterdam in Netherland, they have resolved to form a new village or settlement, at the end of the island, and about the land of Jochem Pieterse, deceased; and those which are adjoining to it. In order that the lovers of agriculture may be encouraged thereto, the proposed new village aforesaid is favored by the director general and council with the following privileges:

FIRST. Each of the inhabitants thereof shall receive by lot in full ownership 18, 20 to 24 morgen of arable land; 6 to 8 morgen of meadow; and be exempt from tenths for fifteen years, commencing next May, on condition that he pay within the course of three years, in installments; eight guilders for each morgen of tillable land for the behoof of the interested, or their creditors, who are now or formerly were driven from the aforesaid lands, and have suffered great loss thereon.

SECONDLY. In order to prevent similar damage from calamities or expulsion, the director general and council, promise the inhabitants of the aforesaid village to protect and maintain them with all their power, and when notified and required; to assist them with 12 to 15 soldiers on the monthly pay of the company, the village providing quarters and rations; this whenever the inhabitants may petition therefor.

THIRDLY. When the aforesaid village has 20 to 25 families; the director general and council will favor it with an inferior court of justice, and for that purpose, a double number is to be nominated out of the most discreet and proper persons, for the first time by the inhabitants; and afterwards by the magistrates thereof, and presented annually to the director general and council to elect a single number therefrom.

FOURTHLY. The director general and council promise to employ all possible means, that the inhabitants of the aforesaid village, when it has the above mentioned number of families, will be accommodated with a good, pious orthodox minister, towards whose maintenance the director general and council promise to pay half the salary; the other half to be supplied by the inhabitants in the best and easiest manner, with the advice of the magistrates of the aforesaid village; at the most convenient time.

FIFTHLY. The director general and council will assist the inhabitants of the aforesaid village, whenever it will best suit their convenience, to construct with the company's negroes a good wagon road from this place to the village aforesaid; so that people can travel hither and thither, on horseback, and with a wagon.

SIXTHLY. In order that the advancement of the aforesaid village, may be the better and sooner promoted, the director general and council have resolved and determined not to establish, or allow to be established, any new villages or settlements, before and until the aforesaid village be brought into existence, certainly not until the aforesaid number of inhabitants is completed.

SEVENTHLY. For the better and greater promotion of neighborly correspondence with the English of the north; the director general and council will at a more convenient time, authorize a ferry and a suitable scow, near the aforesaid village; in order to convey over cattle and horses; and will favor the aforesaid village with a cattle and horse market.

EIGHTHLY. Whoever are inclined to settle themselves there, or take up bouweries by their servants, shall be bound to enter their names at once, or within a short time, at the office of the secretary of the director general and council; and to begin immediately with others, to place on the land one able bodied person, provided with proper arms; or in default thereof to be deprived of his right.

This done in the meeting of the director and council held in Fort Amsterdam in New Netherland, on the 4th of March, A. D., 1658.

The number of applicants for the land being sufficient, ground was broken Aug. 14th ensuing, and the preliminary work of surveying and staking out the lands and village plot was soon completed.

The village was laid out on Harlem river, and contained erven, or house-lots between the streets and in some locations tuynen gardens.

On the 6th of Aug., 1660, the director general and council of New Netherlands erected and established in the village of New Harlem, an inferior court of judicature, naming three commissioners thereof.

In 1661, the director general and council issued the following general order:

All the inhabitants of New Netherland, and especially those of the village of New Harlem; with all others who have, or claim any lands thereabouts, are ordered and commanded that within the space of three months from the date hereof, or at least before the first of January next, they shall have all the cultivated and uncultivated lands, which they claim, surveyed by the sworn surveyor, and set off and designated by proper marks; and on the exhibition of the return of survey thereof, apply for and obtain a regular patent, as proof of property, on pain of being deprived of their right; to the end that the director general and council may dispose as they deem proper of the remaining lands, which after the survey may happen to fall outside of the patents, for the accommodation of others.

All are hereby warned against loss, and after complaints. Thus done in Fort Amsterdam in New Netherland, the 15th of Sept., 1661.

The English gained the ascendancy in New Netherland in 1664, and took possession of the Fort at New Amsterdam, Sept. 8, 1664.

Governor Nichols issued a proclamation June 12, 1665, in which all parts of the island were brought in some respects into one corporation.

In 1666, Gov. Nichols issued a patent or charter to Harlem from which the following are extracts:

Richard Nichols, Esq., governor under his Royal Highness, James, Duke of York, etc., etc.

To all, etc., sendeth greeting :

WHEREAS, there is a certain town or village commonly called or known by the name of New Harlem, situate and being on the east part of this island ; now in the tenure and occupation of several free-holders and inhabitants, who have been at considerable charge in building as well as measuring, planting and fencing the said town, and the lands thereunto belonging.

Now for confirmation, etc., etc, know ye that, etc., and by these presents, do ratify, confirm and grant unto the said freeholders and inhabitants, their heirs, successors and assigns and to each and every one of them, their particular lots and estates in the said town or any part thereof; and I do likewise confirm and grant unto the freeholders and inhabitants in general, their heirs, successors and assigns, the privileges of a town; but immediately depending on this city, as being within the liberties thereof; (here follow boundaries, etc.), with soils, creeks, quarries, woods, meadows, pastures, marshes, waters, fishings, huntings and fowlings, etc.

RICHARD NICHOLS.

This patent was defective in many respects, and Gov. Nichols granted a patent dated Oct. 11th, 1667, enlarging the former grant as to boundaries and otherwise, and confirming it. In this are granted to the patentees and their associates, their heirs, successors and assigns, all the rights and privileges belonging to a town within this goot. With this proviso or exception that all matters of debt or trespass of or above the value of five pounds they shall have relation to and dependence upon the courts of the city (New York). etc. This patent has restrictions and special provisions and is duly signed

RICHARD NICHOLS.

At a late period a patent was issued by Gov. Thos. Dongan, designedly, for quieting the apprehension of freeholders as to their ancient rights, dated March 7, 1686.

The following is a copy thereof :

Thomas Dongan, Captain-General, Governor-in-chief, and Vice-Admiral in and over the Province of New York, and its dependencies thereon in America, under His Majesty James the Second, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., To all to whom these Presents shall come, sendeth Greeting :—WHEREAS RICHARD NICOLLS, Esq., formerly Governor of this Province, hath by his certain writing or Patent, bearing date the Eleventh day of October, Anno Dom. One Thousand Six Hundred Sixty Seven. formerly stood the Saw Mills, over against Verkens or Hog Island in the Sound or East River, shall be the western bounds of their lands, and all the lands lying and being within the said line so drawn north and south as aforesaid, eastward to the end of the Town and Harlem River, or any part of the said River on which this Island doth abut, and likewise on the North and East Rivers, within the limits aforementioned described, doth and shall belong to the said town; As ALSO four lots of meadow ground upon the Main, marked with Number 1, 2, 3, 4, lying over against the Spring, where a passage hath been used to ford over from this Island to the Main, and from thence hither, WITH a small Island commonly called Stony Island, lying to the east of the Town and Harlem River, going through Bronck's Kill, by the little and great Barn's Islands, upon which there are ALSO four other lots of meadow ground, marked with Number 1, 2, 3, 4: TOGETHER with all the soils, creeks, quarries, woods, meadows, pastures, marshes, waters, lakes, fishing, hawking, hunting and fowling, and all other profits, commodities, emoluments and hereditaments to the said land and premises, within the bounds and limits set forth, belonging, or in any wise appertaining, AND ALSO freedom of commonage for range and feed for cattle and horses, further west into the woods upon this Island, as well without as within the bounds and limits set forth and expressed; TO HAVE AND TO HOLD all and singular the said lands, island, commonage, hereditaments, and premises, with their and every of their appurtenances, and of every part and parcel thereof, unto the said Patentees and their Associates, their heirs, successors, and assigns, to the proper use and behoof of the said Patentees and their Associates, their heirs, successors, and assigns forever. AND WHEREAS Richard Nicolls, Esq., did likewise ratify, confirm, and grant unto the said Patentees and their Associates, their heirs, successors, and assigns, All the rights and privileges belonging to a Town within this government. With this proviso, or exception, that in all matters of debt or trespass of or above the value of Five Pounds, they shall have relation unto and dependence upon the Courts of this City, as the other Towns have upon the several Courts of Session to which they do belong; AND that the place of their present habitation shall continue and retain the name of New Harlem, by which name and style it shall be distinguished and known in all bargains and sales, deeds, writings and records; AND that no person whatsoever should be suffered or permitted to erect any manner of house or building upon this said Island, within two miles of the limits and bounds aforementioned, without the consent and approbation of the major part of the inhabitants of the said Town; AND WHEREAS the said Town lies very commodious for a Ferry, to and from the Main, which may redound to the particular benefit of the inhabitants, as well as to a general good, the freeholders and inhabitants, of the said town should, in consideration of the benefits and privileges therein granted, as also for what advantage they might receive thereby, be enjoined and obliged, at their own proper costs and charge, to build or provide one or more boats fit for the transportation of men, horses, or cattle, for which was to be a certain allowance given by each particular person, as should be then ordered and adjudged fit and reasonable; THEY, the said Patentees and their Associates, their heirs, successors, and assigns, Rendering and paying such duties and acknowledgments as then were or after should be established by the laws of this government, under the obedience of His Royal Highness, his heirs and successors, as in and by the said Patent, remaining upon record in the Secretary's Office, reference being thereunto had, doth fully and at large appear. AND WHEREAS, the present inhabitants and freeholders of the Town of New Harlem aforesaid have made their application unto me for a more full and ample confirmation of their premises to them, their heirs, successors, and assigns forever, in their quiet and peaceable possession: NOW KNOW YE, that by virtue of the commission and authority to me derived, and power in me residing, in consideration of the premises, and of the Quit Rent hereinafter reserved, I HAVE GIVEN, granted, ratified, and confirmed, and by these presents do give, grant, ratify, and confirm unto JOHN DELAVALL, RESOLVED WALDRON, JOOST VAN OBLINUS, DANIEL TOURNEUR, ADOLPH MEYER, JOHN SPRAGGE, JAN HENDRICKS BREVOORT, JAN DELAMATER, ISAAC DELAMATER, BARENT WALDRON, JOHANNES VERMELJE, LAWRENCE JANSEN, PETER VAN OBLINUS, JAN DYCKMAN, JOHN NAGEL, ARENT HARMANSE, CORNELIUS JANSEN, JACQUELINE TOURNEUR, HESTER DELAMATER, JOHANNES VERVELEN, WILLIAM HALDRON, ABRAHAM MONTANIE, PETER PARMENTIER,* as Patentees, for and on the behalf of themselves the present freeholders and inhabitants of the said Town of New Harlem, their heirs, successors, and assigns, All and singular the before recited tract, parcel and parcels of land and meadow, butted and bounded as in the said Patent is mentioned and expressed, together with all and singular the messuages, tenements, houses, buildings, barns, stables, orchards, gardens, pastures, mills, mill-dams, runs, streams, ponds, woods, underwoods, trees, timber, fencing, fishing, hawking, hunting, and fowling liberties, privileges, hereditaments, and improvements whatsoever to the said tract of land and premises belonging, or in any wise appertaining, or accepted, reputed, taken, or known, or used, occupied, and enjoyed, as part, parcel, or member thereof, with their and every of their appurtenances; Always provided, that nothing contained therein shall be construed to prejudice the right of the City of New York, or any other particular right; and the saving to the said City of New York and their successors forever, and also saving to every particular person, his heirs and assigns, that have any right, interest or estate within the limits of the said Town of New Harlem, as well as without the limits of the said Town of Harlem, full power, liberty and privilege to build, cultivate and improve all such tracts and parcels of land as the said City of New York now have, or hereafter shall have, within or without and adjacent to the limits of the Town of Harlem aforesaid; And also the commonage, of the Town of Harlem aforesaid, is to be confirmed within the limits abovesaid, and the right of commonage to extend no further, any grant or thing contained herein to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding: To HAVE AND TO HOLD the said several tracts and parcels of land and premises, with their and every of their appurtenances, unto them the said John Delavall, Resolved Waldron, Joost van Oblinus, Daniel Tourneur, Adolph Meyer, John Spragge, Jan Hendricks Brevoort, Jan Delamater, Isaac Delamater, Barent Waldron, Johannes Vermelje, Lawrence Jansen, Jan Dyckman, Jan Nagel, Arent Harmanse, Cornelis Jansen, Peter van Oblinus, Jacqueline Tourneur, Hester Delamater, Johannes Verveelen, William Haldron, Abraham Montanie, Peter Parmentier, as Patentees for and on behalf of themselves, their heirs, successors, and assigns, to the sole and only proper use, benefit, and behoof of the said Patentees, their heirs, successors, and assigns forever; To BE HOLDEN of His Most Sacred Majesty, his heirs and successors, in free and common socage, according to the tenure of East Greenwich, in the County of Kent, in His Majesty's Kingdom of England; YIELDING, rendering and paying therefor yearly and every year forever, on or before the Five and Twentieth day of March, in lieu of all services and demands whatsoever, as a Quit Rent, to His Most Sacred Majesty aforesaid, his heirs and successors, or to such officer or officers as shall be appointed to receive the same, Sixteen bushels of good winter merchantable Wheat, at the City of New York. IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF I have caused these presents to be entered upon record in the Secretary's Office, and the Seal of the Province to be hereunto affixed, this Seventh day of March, 1686, and in the Third year of His Majesty's reign.

THO. DONGAN.

* These names are strangely distorted in the Patent, as "Recorded for the Inhabitants of Harlem," in Liber 6, Page 192, of Patents, in the Secretary of the State's Office, Albany; showing gross carelessness somewhere, either on the part of the recording clerk, the draftsman, or the person who made out the list. They are here corrected from indisputable data; and the entire document is also relieved from the crudities of the old spelling, which serve no purpose but to mar the text.

The limits of the patent, recited somewhat awkwardly, but never meant to be indefinite or uncertain, plainly included so much of Manhattan Island as lay to the east and north of the given line, and bordering upon the "Harlem River, or any part of the said River on which this Island doth abut, and likewise on the North and East Rivers." It expressly comprehended "all the soils, creeks, quarries, woods, meadows, pastures, marshes, waters, lakes, and all other profits, commodities, emoluments, and hereditaments to the said lands and premises, within the bounds and limits set forth, belonging, or in any wise appertaining."

If these premises be admitted, and if the vacant lands, etc., granted by Dongan's charter to the Corporation of New York, were, as that charter says, only those "not heretofore given or granted by any of the former Governors," we may fairly question whether Dongan did not violate the ancient rights of the Harlem people, not only as their commonage, but in giving the Corporation the control of the water-line along the exterior shore of the Harlem patent. But while greater wrongs must inevitably follow any impairing of this now venerable and generally conceded prerogative, how can the claim hold that it extends alike to the interior vacant lands, creeks or marshes, the title to which we submit is rightfully vested in the heirs or assigns of the Dongan patentees.*

* This view is taken in an Opinion, given by the late Hon. Murray Hoffman, March 13, 1873, respecting a piece of land owned by Mr. Voorhis; situated on Harlem Creek, between 2d and 3d avenues, and extending from 108th street toward 109th. It lay in a cove of the creek and was part of the 12 acres (two of the Van Keulen Hook lots] owned at an early day by Capt. Thomas Delavall, and sold to Benjamin Benson by Simon Johnson, 1747. We quote one or two paragraphs from the Opinion.

"We can here draw a natural and, we think, legal distinction between the River proper and a creek of it. The former is defined by the general course (filum) of the body of the stream, and such course is from point to point where there is an indentation into the land, properly a cove. The latter is that indentation. And we could very consistently hold that the land under water within the cove, between high and low water mark passed, but not outside of it. This view would be tenable even if that was an indentation from Harlem River a fortiori when from Harlem Creek. But the creek itself, we contend, passed; and the case is then much stronger."

Again, alluding to the language of the Harlem Patent, quoted in the text, granting all the soils, creeks, etc., Judge Hoffman very pertinently remarks, "It would be difficult to get together terms which would more fully embrace anything of land, of water, and of any combination of the two."

THE STORM FAMILY.

The author of this volume does not propose to give a genealogy of the Storm family; he submits for the consideration of such persons as may be interested in the subject a few facts; he being himself a lineal descendant of that family.

From a history of Harlem published in 1881, by James Riker, we extract the following from page 106 :

"Utrecht and Arnhem, cities on the Rhine, the latter within Gelderland, supplied settlers to Harlem. A hamlet near Amersfoort in the province or diocese of Utrecht gave us Jan Hendricks van Brevoort; coming to this country at much the same time, about 1655, emigrated the Van Tilburg family, from Tilburg in the Mayory of Bosh in Dutch Brabant, and from the same district came two other colonists whose progeny are numerous and respectable, to wit : David Ackerman and Dirk Storm,* names not unknown at Harlem; these with their families sailed from Amsterdam, Sept. 2d, 1662, in the ship Fox, Capt. Jacob Huys, which also brought Jan Terbosch and Robert Le Maire.

THOMAS STORM, noticed in note, born in 1687, remained on Philips Manor; he purchased land in Rombout Precinct, Dutchess Co., where his sons Goris, Abraham and John settled. Abraham Storm, m., Aug. 31, 1731, Catharine, dau. of Aaron Bussing, who was a great-granddaughter of Claude Deknater, of Harlem.

* DIRCK STORM, as already noticed, arrived here in 1662, with his w. Maria Pieters, and three young chn. He had in all, at least, sons Gregoris, Peter, and David, and dr. Maria, who m. Caspar Springsteen. In 1670 he succeeded Carel de Beauvois, dec., as secretary at Brooklyn; afterwards served some years as town clerk at Flatbush, was made Clerk of the Sessions for Orange co. in 1691, and held that office till 1703. In 1697 he and family were living at Philips Manor, Westchester co., where his desc. became numerous and noted. His son Gregoris Storm, m. at New Utrecht, Engeltie, dr. of Thomas Van Dyck, and had sons Derick, b. 1695; Thomas, b. 1697, etc. After Gregoris, or Goris, as commonly called, d., his wid. m. Jacques Tourneur, of H. Her son Thomas Storm becoming a widower, m. the dr. of Adolph Meyer, of H., and wid. of Johannes Sickles, 1st. Thomas remained on Philips Manor, holding a farm under Col. Frederick Philips, but he made three several purchases of land in Rombout Precinct, Dutchess co., on which he settled his sons Gerrit, Goris, Abraham, and John. His son Isaac took his place at Philips Manor. Other sons, Thomas, his eldest, and Jacob, were d. when he made his will June 28, 1763. It was proved Jan. 15, 1770. Abraham Storm m. Oct. 5, 1759, Catharine, dr. of Aaron Bussing, of H. An active whig in the Revolution, he was "made prisoner by the British troops," and his family saw him no more. On Mar. 22, 1784, his wid. released to Gerrit, Goris, and Isaac Storm the lands of said Abraham, in Rombout Precinct, and returning to H., obtained by deed of Aug. 18, 1784, from her fa.'s executor, John Sickles, the farm of 31 acres on Van Keulen's Hook, which she sold eleven years later to James Roosevelt. She d. Aug. 16, 1803, leaving no chn. The desc. of Dirk Storm take prominence for numbers and worth. (Riker's Harlem, p. 306.)

DIRCK STORM, m. — Van Anden of Fiskkill, Dutchess Co.; they resided many years on their farm in the Rombout, now Pleasant valley, where their children were born as follows :

- i Susan, m., 1st, John Conkling, and had two children, William and Hannah ; m., 2d, Van Wagner, had one son, Joseph ; m., 3d, Montross Thurston, of Dutchess Co., had no children.
- ii Peggy Polly, m. Abraham Halenbeck, they settled on a farm at an early day, in the town of Greene, Chenango Co., N. Y., where they died, she at the age of 99 years and 6 months ; their children were, David, Hester, Joshua, Betsey, Susan and John.
- iii Abraham, m. Eva Roosa,* at Cocksackie; they also settled on a farm, at Greene, Chenango Co., where they died ; their children were, Barnick, Isaac, Jane, Polly, John, Dewitt and James
- iv Betsy, m. Caleb Hill, they settled at Greene, Chenango Co. ; remained there a number of years ; they removed with their family to Waterloo, N. Y., where they both died at an advanced age. (Riker's Harlem, p. 463, note).
- v Agnes, who m. Isaac Roosa, also settled at Greene, and after some years removed with his family to Waterloo, N. Y., where they died ; their children were, Storm, Esack, John, Betsy, and others, whose names are not given.
- vi John, went with his brothers to Greene, and married there ; and after a number of years he removed with his family to Willoughby, Ohio, where they died, leaving a family.
- vii James, also settled at Greene, and after some years removed with his family to Monroe Co., N. Y. ; he died leaving a family.
- viii Engeltie, m. Joshua Badgley, of Dutchess Co., N. Y., they settled on a farm, where she died ; he then m., 2d, Hester, a sister of his first wife ; their children were, George, Hester, Betsy, Susan, Storm, Milton and Caroline.

* The ROOSA family, since so multiplied in Ulster and adjacent counties, and known also as Rosa and Rose, came from Herwynen, Gelderland ; sailing from Holland for this country, in the ship Bonte-koe, Apl. 15, 1660. There were Albert Heymans Roosa, his w. Weilke de Jonge, and eight chn. between the ages of 2 and 17 yrs. Directly on arrival Roosa went to Esopus (no doubt at the instance of Roelof Swartwout, a fellow-passenger returning to that place) ; where he and his w. united with the church, of which, two years later he became an elder. Gov. Stuyvesant giving a name to Wiltwyck, May 16, 1661, appointed Roosa one of its first schepens. Here he took up land, for which he got a patent Aug. 19, 1664. He was a man of firm will and great energy, being also "wonderf l strong and quick." Roosa d. Feb. 27, 1679, leaving a good estate to his chn., who were: Heyman, b. 1643, Arien, b. 1645, and Jan, b. 1651—by all whom the name was perpetuated—and drs. Ilke, Mary, Neeltie, and Jannetie. The last was m. to *Matthys Ten Eyck, of N. Y., Ilke to Roelof Kierstead, Neeltie to Henry Pawling, and Mary to Laurens Jansen, of H. (Riker's Harlem, p. 463.)

- ix Have not the name, married a Platt, settled at or near Kingston, Upper Canada.
- x Catharine, m. Stephen Truesdell, of Coxsackie, N. Y., he was a clothier and farmer ; they both died there at an advanced age. she at 94 years ; their children were, Storm, George, Caroline, Stephen and John, he m. Mary Van Voohees, a great-granddaughter of Goris Storm, of Dutchess Co.
- xi Anetje Anna, m. Abraham Delamater, in 1800, they settled in Duaneburgh, Schenectady Co., N. Y.

Dirck Storm removed with some of his family from Dutchess Co., to Coxsackie, Greene Co., N. Y., about 1790, where he and his wife died at an advanced age.

ANNEKE JANS.

Who was Annetje Ameke Jans Webber?

Annetje Webber was born in Holland in the year 1605, and was granddaughter of William, Prince of Orange. She married Jan (John) Roleoff in Holland; they came to this country, America, and were among the earliest settlers of New Amsterdam, New York. They had four children, viz: Sarah, Catharine, Fitje, Jonas. Her husband sickened and died in New York and she subsequently married Rev. Everadus Bogardus, who was pastor of the First Reformed Dutch church of New Amsterdam (New York) about 1637 or '38, by whom she had the following children: William, Cornelius, Jans and Peter. Her second husband, Bogardus, arrived in New York on the ship Southbury, in April, 1633; he sailed in the ship Princess on a visit to the Fatherland, and was wrecked off the coast of Wales, Sept. 27, 1647. Annetje, his wife, died in Beaverwyck, now Albany, N. Y., March 26, 1663.

Annetje Webber, wife of Jan Roleoff, bought from the Dutch government, her farm lying in New Amsterdam (New York), containing 192 acres, the title to which was confirmed by the Dutch governor, Wouter Van Twiler and afterwards by the British governor, Richard Nichol, Esq., in two solemn deeds of confirmation, the same being on record in the secretary of state's office in the city of Albany, state of New York. Prior to her death she made a will giving to her children all her clothing, etc., and then gave her estate to be divided among them equally. When she came to Albany, she had been compelled to leave New Amsterdam on account of being fenced outside the fortifications, at the time of the Indian troubles, by a stockade being erected across the city proper; after the trouble was over, and Annetje Bogardus was away from the city, the Trinity church took possession of her farm by driving off all heirs and settlers, and have held the same up to this date, under a bogus lease which expired some years since, and for which the heirs are now in litigation.

Sarah Roleoff, eldest daughter of Anneke Jans Roleoff, married Hans Kierstede, a physician from Amsterdam, Holland; they were married in the Fort at New Amsterdam (New York), June 29, 1642; their children were:

- i Hans Kierstede, bapt. Sept. 21, 1644; m. Jantje Lockmans.
- ii Roleoff Kierstede, bapt. July, 1647; m. Eyke Rosa.
- iii Blandina Kierstede, bapt. June 5, 1650; m. Peter Bayard.
- iv Joachim Kierstede, bapt. Oct. 4, 1655; m.

- v Lucas Kierstede, bapt. Sept. 23, 1657; m. Rachel Kip.
- vi Catharine Kierstede, bapt. Jan. 4, 1660; m. Johannes Kip.
- vii Jacobus Kierstede, bapt. Nov. 28, 1663; m. Elizabeth Lawrence.
- viii Rachel Kierstede, bapt. Sept. 13, 1665; m. William Teller.

Catharine Kierstede, daughter of Hans Kierstede and Sarah Roleoff, his wife, bapt. Jan. 4, 1660, was publicly married to Johannes Kip, in the Fort at New Amsterdam, on the Island of Manhattan, June 29, 1681; their children were:

- i Jacobus Kip, b. Oct. 22, 1682, bapt. Nov. 4, 1682.
- ii Henry Kip, b. Sept. 1, 1684.
- iii Maria Kip, b. Sept. 17, 1686.
- iv Sarah Kip, b. Sept. 10, 1688.
- v Hans Kip, b. Oct. 30, 1690.
- vi Blandina Kip, b. Feb. 1, 1692.
- vii Johannes Kip, b. Jan. 24, 1693.
- viii Blandina Kip, b. April 27, 1696; d. May 31, 1696.
- ix Catharine Kip, b. July 9, 1697; d. Oct. 12, 1697.
- x Catherine Kip, b. Oct. 15, 1698.
- xi Henricus Kip, b. Oct. 20, 1700.
- xii Blandina Kip, b. March 25, 1703.
- xiii Benjamin Kip, b. March 25, 1703.
- xiv Tunis Kip, b. March 25, 1706.

Jacobus Kip, son of Johannes Kip and Catharine Kierstede, his wife, b. Oct. 22, 1682, was publicly married to Catharine DeHart, Dec. 14, 1704, in the city of New York. They settled on Long Island and lived there several years. Their children were:

- i Johannes Kip, bapt. April 25, 1705.
- ii Jacobus Kip, bapt. Jan. 7, 1710.
- iii Kate Kip, bapt. April 4, 1713.
- iv William Kip, bapt. Aug. 29, 1715.
- v Henricus Kip, bapt. Dec. 11, 1718.
- vi Cornelia Kip, bapt. Oct. 15, 1721.
- vii Belthasar Kip, bapt. Nov. 21, 1723.
- viii Benjamin Kip, bapt. Oct. 15, 1726.

They removed to Kingston, Ulster Co., N. Y., in 1720. We find a record in the secretary of state's office, at Albany, N. Y., a praying petition and grant for 7000 acres of land, to Jacobus Kip and others, Sept. 9, 1720, said land lying in the county of Ulster, State of New York, as follows:

Grant of land to Jacobus Kip, situated in Ulster Co., state of New York, Sept. 9, 1720, found on vol. 7, books 86 and 87 description of a survey of 7,000 acres of land in the County of Ulster, being part of the land formally granted to Capt. John Evans, beginning at the northward part of the Eel Fishing Place, or the beginning of Quassaick Brook and adjoining the lands of Henry Wileman and Alexander Beard, laid out for Jacobus Kip and others by Cadwalder Colden, Surveyor-General. (See vol. 7, books 86 and 87), Sept. 9, 1720.

Draft of 7,000 acres of land in the County of Ulster, being part of the grant formally granted to Capt. John Evans, Surveyed for Jacobus Kip and others. Cadwalder Colden, Surveyor-General.

NEWBURGH, Orange Co., Sept. 12, 1720.

Petition of Jacobus Kip and others, praying a Patent for a tract of land in the County of Ulster, laid out for these pursuant of warrant.

Warrant for a Patent. Jacobus Kip and others for 7,000 acres of land in the county of Ulster, being part of the land formally granted to Capt. John Evans. (Newburgh, Orange county, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1720.)

Johannes Kip, eldest son of Jacobus Kip and Catharine DeHart, his wife, born and baptized in the Dutch church, in the city of New York, April 25, 1705.

"January 28, 1868.

Johannes Kip, above named, went with his parents when they removed from Long Island to Kingston, Ulster Co., N. Y., where they settled about 1720. In 1723 he married Margaret Van Eitan. They remained in Kingston for some years, several of their children being baptized there. After some years they were living at Rhinebeck, Dutchess Co., N. Y., where he owned a large farm. He died and was buried in the old cemetery of the Dutch church at Rhinebeck. He left a family of twelve children, viz :

- i Jacob (John) Kip.
- ii Petries Kip.
- iii Rachel Kip.
- iv Eva Kip.
- v Maria Kip, b. Nov. 20, 1730.
- vi Benjamin Kip.
- vii Abraham Kip.

- ix Isaac Kip.
- x Samuel Kip.
- xi Catherine Kip, b. Oct. 13, 1745.
- xii Elizabeth Kip.

WILL OF JOHANNES KIP.

In 1758, Johannes Kip executed his will, a copy of which is given below as follows :

“In the name of God, Amen. Know all men by these presents, that on this second day of September, in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-eight, I, the undersigned, Johannes Kip, of Rhynebeck, in Dutchess Co., landman, being of sound and disposing mind, memory and understanding, through the help of God, believing in God’s mercy in the uncertainty of life, do make this his last will and testament, in the manner hereafter written, and hereby revoking all and every former will by me made.

“Item. I give my soul into the hands of the loving God ; relying on the Father and the redemption of Jesus Christ ; and my estate, consisting of lands, horses, cattle, debts, money, gold, silver, and of what further my estate consists, I order, give and dispose of as follows, viz : it is my will and request that all my debts shall be paid.

“Item. It is my will and request that my wife, Margaret, shall have the third as the law to her gives, and no more.

“Item. It is my will and request that my oldest son, Jacob, (John) Kip, before the dividing of the property, is made the sum of ten shillings, current money of this Province, for his birthright.

“Item. It is my will and request, and I give the rest and residue of my estate not disposed of, to my twelve children, viz : Jacob (John) Kip, Petries Kip, Rachel Kip, wife of Benjamin Van Ettan, Eva, wife of Isaac Delamater, Maria wife of Hannis Delamater, Benjamin Kip, Abraham Kip, Johannes Kip, Isaac Kip, Samuel Kip, Catharine Kip, Elizabeth Kip, to be equally divided between them.

“Item. I appoint my sons, Jacob (John) Kip, Benjamin Kip, and Abraham Kip, executors to this my last will and testament. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this day and year above mentioned.

“JOHANNES KIP.” [L. s.]

“Signed, sealed and delivered by Johannes Kip, and delivered by him to be his last will and testament in the presence of us and at the request of the testator, and in his presence and in the presence of each other, have subscribed our names as witnesses.

“BENJAMIN VAN STEENBURGH,

“ISAAC COOL,

“CHRISTIAN SCHELPS.”

Copied from the original.

“This may certify that on the 15th day of August, 1867, I translated a will which was written in the Dutch language, presented to me by Tera Ferry, who had it in his possession, which will was dated Sept. 2d, 1758, and the foregoing is a true copy.

(Oct., 1885, 20,000)

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

One volume allowed at a time, and obtained only by card; to be kept 14 days (or seven days in the case of fiction and juvenile books published within one year,) without fine; not to be renewed; to be reclaimed by messenger after 21 days, who will collect 20 cents besides fine of 2 cents a day, including Sundays and holidays; not to be lent out of the borrower's household, and not to be transferred; to be returned at this Hall.

Borrowers finding this book mutilated or unwarrantably defaced, are expected to report it; and also any undue delay in the delivery of books.

*No claim can be established because of the failure of any notice, to or from the Library, through the mail.

The record below must not be made or altered by borrower.
